In view of the approaching election and the existing political excitement, I deem it a duty incumbent on me, as Chief Magistrate of this city, to warn and advise all citizens not to allow themselves to be drawn into any controversy, or gather in crowds on the streets or in the vicinity of the polls. All well-disposed and orderly citizens will deposit their votes and immediately retire from the polls.

The police and special aids of the Sheriff will in the discharge of their duty see that the ordinances and laws respecting elections, and the rules and regulations in reference to voting, shall be properly enforced.
C. GODFREY GUNTHER, Mayor.

ORDER OF GEN. DIX.

HEADQUARTERS DEPARTMENT OF THE EAST, NEW-YORK CITY, Nov. 2, 1864.

To Provost-marshals and their Deputies in the several States in this Department:

GENERAL ORDERS, No. 85.—In pursuance of the intimation contained in Department General Orders, No. 80, you are hereby instructed to make such arrangements within your respective districts, as may be practicable, for the detection of persons coming into the department for the purpose of voting, who have been in the service of the authorities in the insurgent States, who have deserted from the service of the United States, or who have fled to evade the draft. All such persons will be promptly arrested, and sent to these headquarters. For this purpose detectives should be employed for two or three days before the election, and the aid of the Inspectors is solicited in furnishing any information, which may be obtained at the polls, and which may lead to the detection of the guilty parties. Through this information, and that obtained by detectives and challengers, it is believed, that those who have the hardihood to attempt to add to their other crimes, that of fraudulent voting, may be brought to punishment.

No military force will be embodied at or in the vicinity of any of the polls, and there must be no interference in any manner, with the exercise of the right of suffrage, or with those who are charged with the performance of any duty connected with the election in any of the States in this department, under their constitutions and laws. But if the civil authorities should call on you to aid them in keeping the peace, you are authorized and required to do so, acting in strict subordination to them.

After the election, the greatest vigilance will be exercised in regard to persons crossing the frontier into Canada; and if, in any case there is good reason to believe that they belong to any of the classes above enumerated, they will be detained and promptly reported to these headquarters for instructions.

By command of Maj.-Gen. DIX.
D. T. VAN BUREN, Colonel and Asst. Adjt.-Gen.
Official: W. E. BLAKE, Aid-de-Camp.

The Approaching Elections.

IMPORTANT ORDER FROM GEN. HOOKER.

The following has just been issued by Maj.-Gen. HOOKER, Commanding the Northern Department:

HEADQUARTERS NORTHERN DEPARTMENT, CINCINNATI, Oct. 27, 1864.

CIRCULAR.

The Commander of this department has received information that it is the intention of a large body of men on the northern frontier, on each side of the line, open on one side, and in disguise on the other, to so organize at the ensuing national election, as to interfere with the integrity of the election, and when in their power, to cast illegal votes; in fact, in any way interfere with the honest expressions of the electors.

All Provost-Marshals and assistants and all military commanders will take measures to obtain and report at once any information that may lead to the prevention of this interference with the rights of the people, or aid in the arrest and punishment of the offenders; they, from time to time, will report by telegraph any new facts.

Local authorities will receive all the aid within the control of the military commander.

By command of Maj.-Gen. HOOKER.
[Official.]
C. H. POTTER, Asst.-Adjt.-Gen.

IMPORTANT ORDER FROM GEN. COUCH.

Maj.-Gen. COUCH, Commanding this Department, has issued the following order:

HEADQUARTERS DEPARTMENT OF THE SUSQUEHANNA, CHAMBERSBURGH, PA., Nov. 1, 1864.

GENERAL ORDERS No. 65.—1. That the interest of the Government and the welfare of this Department may be maintained, it is ordered that refugees, deserters from the rebel lines, and citizens of States in rebellion, who are now within this Department, or who may enter it before the eighth (8th) day of November inst., shall report to the nearest district or town Provost Marshal, that they may be registered and description recorded, and to receive proper certificates and papers. Persons belonging to any of the classes herein mentioned, found within the limits of this department on or after the date named, without authority, or who by pillaging, counseling outbreak, destruction of life or property, or in any manner acting as enemies of the Government, will be regarded as spies, and subjected to summary punishment.

In view of the foregoing facts, it is made the duty of all officers of the Government, both civil and military, as well as loyal citizens, to guard well the integrity of the ballot-box.

All military officers, including Provost-Marshals and their assistants, will be held to a strict accountability for the adoption of such measures within their districts or commands as will not only prevent illegal voting, but to arrest and bring to justice all who attempt such voting, or endeavoring to prevent the honest exercise of the elective franchise.

The citizens and civil authorities of the towns and cities on the Northern frontier are particularly requested to give any information they may have, or may from time to time receive, to the Prvost-Marshals or military authorities, whose duty it is to inform the nearest Provost-Marshal-General, or other military authority, and to take measures to arrest and confine any and all connected with such organizations. The late raid on the lakes and in New-England, are ample evidence that neither life or property are safe.

2. In view of the approaching election, deserters from the army and the draft may return to their homes, and every effort must be made to arrest and hold them to the service they owe to their government.

3. Military commanders, district provost marshals, their deputies and assistants, within this Department, will be held responsible for the faithful execution of this order, and will adopt such measures as will best secure the desired object.

4. All law-abiding citizens are earnestly requested to act in conjunction with the proper authorities, and to aid them, if necessary, in the inforcement of the instructions herein set forth.

By command of Major-Gen. COUCH.

George N. Sanders and Gen. Dix's Order.

MONTREAL, C. E., Oct. 29, 1864.

"To all whom it may concern."

As Maj.-Gen. JOHN A. DIX, of the Federal army, under the pretext of guarding against Confederate voting, has issued an extraordinary order directing the Federal soldiery to take possession of the polls in New-York upon the Presidential election day, it becomes proper and right that I should declare that there is no fact better understood than that the Confederates are but mere lookers-on; and further, that I do not believe there is one in Canada, including the St. Alban's prisoners, who would cross the line with the fullest Federal protection, to vote for either of the Presidential candidates.

The Picket Surprise—How it was Effected—The News of the Fraud Attempted on the Soldiers' Vote—Feeling Against the Perpetrators.

From Our Own Correspondent.

HEADQUARTERS FIFTH CORPS, WELDON RAILROAD, Monday, Oct. 31, 1864.

Since the date of my last letter affairs have once more relapsed into the same dull routine of drill and parade. The camps have been reëstablished, the men are busy beautifying and improving their little tents and huts. Chimneys are all the rage, and wood is in great demand. Quiet is again the order of the day, and the late reconnoissance is almost forgotten.

Last night, however, the silence and seeming indifference of the pickets was most unexpectedly broken, and one of those extraordinary episodes occurred that show how singular are the tides of fortune and of war. About 10 P. M., as the pickets on the left of Gen. HANCOCK's lines, in front of Petersburgh, were preparing for the relief, usually expected at that hour, a body of rebel infantry came in on the flank, where a ravine offered an unusual opportunity, and coolly and quietly passed along our picket posts, taking off as they went each man, and telling them "to fall in," taking, in this manner, some 250 prisoners.

When they had taken all that belonged to the One Hundred and Eleventh and Sixty-ninth New-York Regiments, they retired, but immediately returned, thinking that they could continue their pleasant game, and so "gobble up" a portion of Gen. WARREN's line also.

Unluckily enough for them, the trick was discovered during their brief absence, and a fresh supply of men thrown into the intrenchments. As the "Johnnies" came chuckling over the hill, they unexpectedly received a full and raking volley, which soon ran up and down HANCOCK's front, and a portion of the right of Gen. WARREN's line. Back and forth in angry waves the withering fire ran, now sinking to a single shot, again rising to the full dignity of a platoon fire. Soon, the artillery in the immediate vicinity, at "Fort Howard" and "Fort Hill," (or Sedgwick's,) lent their deep-toned thunder to the carnage of the night. The shells and grape flew in quick succession, and woke the echoes wild for many a mile.

The first volley brought every sleeper to his feet, it was so sudden, angry and fierce. The same thought flashed upon every mind—a night attack!—and as we listened with bated breath to the terrible and searching volleys, as they rang out in the night air, every eye was open and every heart-beat was quickened.

At headquarters the call for staff horses to be saddled and the Provost Guard to turn out, bespeak alertness, and as the receding sounds of galloping hoofs went past, we hastily dressed and rushed out to learn the news.

It appears that some of our men deserted from our lines into that of the enemy, and added to their terrible crime by giving full and accurate information regarding the strength of our picket line, and the time of their relief. You have already been told how successfully this information was acted upon, and if it had not been for the sharpness of one of our men it might have proved quite a disaster to the maintenance of our lines. This young man, however, discovered the ruse, and managed to elude their vigilance and escape. Giving his information to the first officer he met on Gen. CRAWFORD's front, steps were at once taken to defeat a renewal of the cunning game. The man himself was forthwith dispatched to the nearest General—CRAWFORD—who commanded the right flank of Gen. WARREN's life, and he immediately rode out to his works to see if all was right.

The alarm was given through the telegraph, and the entire army stood to arms in a very short time. The men were already up, and almost turned out of their own accord, so habituated do soldiers become to sudden alarms. The firing continued for over an hour, then suddenly ceased, almost as quickly as it commenced. At intervals, however, the angry rifles of our pickets disturbed our slumbers, and made us turn uneasily on our rough couches.

The night was admirably suited to such enterprises, being dark and smoky—just the night in which it would be difficult to tell friend from foe. The way the enemy succeeded was through the ravine already spoken of, and it is remarkable that better care was not taken of so peculiar a spot.

What causes the affair to be looked upon as a sort of joke is the fact that Gen. HANCOCK's men played the same identical hoax upon the enemy not long since, and at almost the same part of our lines. At that time we took a little over three hundred, so that we are ahead yet. Ever since that time we have held the trenches in which we captured the rebel pickets, and the enemy have annoyed that part of our lines, and have caused a great deal of ammunition to be wasted in consequence.

Altogether the incident will long be remembered as one of those peculiar episodes with which our siege operations are constantly studded. I heard it more than once remarked that if the rebels didn't look out, they would get paid for their impudence and temerity. One of the boys said, "If the Johnnies get too sassy, old GRANT will give 'em fits." Whether the "fits" spoken of will have a healthy effect, it will remain to be proven.

Nothing else of any importance has occurred during the past two days along our lines. The news of the discovery of the terrible and audacious election frauds on the New-York soldiers' vote, caused a sensation among the gallant sons of the empire State. If they had their way with the miscreants who so foully sought to deprive the soldiers of their preponderating influence in securing the election of "ABE AND ANDY," they would deal out bullets instead of ballots, and so rid our traitor-defiled and bleeding land of the cumbering presence of those vile and unscrupulous agents of a corrupt and wicked party.

The people of the North cannot conceive the indignation felt and expressed among the soldiers at this flagrant breaking of the laws. The news arrived in the different camps just after the army had returned from what at first had threatened to be a determined battle, and the reader can imagine the feelings of the volunteers when they found that while they were risking their precious lives in defence of their country and their flag, a parcel of dirty cowards and miserable tricksters had been busy at work defeating the immense majority they had sent by the mail before they went out to do battle for the cause.

Of late the Fifth Corps has been singularly fortunate in having some of its leading officers promoted. Brig.-Gen. S. W. CRAWFORD, commanding the Third Division, has received from the hands of the President the promotion of Major-General by brevet. Gen. CRAWFORD is one of the oldest Brigadiers in the service, having won the silver star ever since April, 1862. He served under BANKS in the Shenandoah Valley in that year, and afterward at Fredericksburgh and Gettysburgh, (where he made the famous charge at the head of the Pennsylvania Reserves,) and has commanded a division in the Fifth Corps ever since the army crossed the Rapidan in May last.

Col. E. M. GREGORY, of the Ninety-first Pennsylvania, (a very old officer, having served as Colonel in the Peninsular campaign,) Col. J. W. HOFFMAN, of the Fifty-fifth Pennsylvania, Col. WHEELOCK, Ninety-seventh New-York, and Col. RICHARD COULTER, of the Eleventh Pennsylvania, have all been breveted with the rank of Brigadier-Generals, for distinguished services in the field. Much satisfaction is expressed at these promotions.

TUESDAY, Nov. 1, 1864.

Continuous and frequently heavy firing could be heard all last night. It occurred mostly in the vicinity of the late "gobble," and in all probability the pickets will amuse their night vigils for some time with making the air hideous with their reverberating vollies. Picket-firing has, however, become so common, that it seldom disturbs the soldier's slumber, but serves as a rude lullaby as he dreams of home.

More Work Expected—Union of Partisan Rangers—Pickets Attacked—Martinsburgh—Presentation—Emancipation Day.

From Our Special Correspondent.

MARTINSBURGH, Tuesday, Nov. 1, 1864.

There are indications that our troops will have more work to do in this valley before it is yielded up to Federal rule, and possibly within a very few days. Intelligent rumor gives EARLY reinforcements. That he has a desire to retrieve his fallen fortunes is a fact fully set forth in the published address to his men, comments upon which I made in a previous letter. Another indication of activity on the part of the enemy was shown last night near this place. A small detachment of rebel cavalry made their way to the infantry pickets, less than two miles west of the town, captured three men and wounded another. A detachment of the Twenty-second Pennsylvania Cavalry went out subsequently in pursuit, and succeeded in capturing several of the party and wounding a few. The prisoners represent that IMBODEN, MOSBY and MOBLEY have united their decimated forces, and for the present will act in conjunction; probably they will threaten this place occasionally, or attempt to make a dash across the border—but more likely the Commander of this Confederate force will be on the lookout for some valuable train on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, or between this and Winchester. What seems to give some color to the report as to the coöperation of the parties named above, is the fact that a force, numbering at least 400 or 500 men, has been seen during the last week between this point and Winchester. Indeed they have threatened several supply trains. I opine, however, that the day has passed by when even the combined forces of the three men named will be able to do much harm to trains or Government property.

Martinsburgh, under the rule of Gen. SEWARD, is rapidly improving in general appearance, and notwithstanding this is the depot for the supplies of a large army, and the town is constantly full of a migratory population, order reigns in every department; so much so, indeed, that ladies parade the streets in large numbers, unattended by gentlemen, and are as free from annoyance as though in the streets of New-York. Something that cannot be said of many towns under military rule.

As I write, word comes in that our cavalry at Fisher's Hill, or Round Top, had a little skirmish with the enemy night before last. There was also some picket firing at different points along the front. All surplus wagons and stores have been moved out of the way, so that the army is as mobile as it is possible to make it.

PRESENTATION.

En passant, I will mention that a very deserving officer—Col. BASSETT, Eighty-second Pennsylvania Volunteers, commanding Third Brigade, First Division, Sixth Corps, stationed at Winchester—was recently presented with a valuable sword and accoutrements by the officers of the command, as a token of their respect and esteem for him as an officer and man.

This being Emancipation Day in Maryland, as a matter of course, it is the subject of comment in every circle. I find that even Secessionists here are disposed to acquiesce in the march of events, and some go so far as to say that this event solves all difficulties; that they now have nothing more to battle for. When the people of a State like Maryland—or a majority of the loyal people of that State, find it for their interest or politic to overturn, in a single day, as it were, their whole social system, it leads the opponents of free labor to think that there must be something radically wrong in it. Little or no heed, whatever, is given to the fact that only a minority of the people who voted for the Presidential candidates four years ago, saw fit to vote for the new Constitution; for, they argue an institution not worth the sacrifice they were called upon to make, certainly is not worth perpetuating. It should be borne in mind that there has always existed a strong sympathy between this portion of Virginia and Western Maryland. So nearly allied are they socially, that the feelings of people here may be safely taken as the predominant feeling across the river.

The Battle of Allatoona—It is Made an Example in War—Gens. Sherman's and Howard's Congratulatory Orders.

The special correspondent of the Cincinnati Commercial, at Rome, Ga., writes as follows, under date of Oct. 17:

It is universally conceded that the battle at Allatoona, for the number of troops engaged, was the most terrific of the war. For a determination unequaled in combat, and a bravery that cannot be too highly appreciated, Brig.-Gen. JOHN M. CORSE, and his noble companions in arms, have received the thanks, sympathy and congratulations of the entire Union army. A graceful tribute, and one worthy of the occasion, is the following from Gen. SHERMAN. What prouder compliment could a subordinate desire than that his General-in-Chief speaks of his action to "illustrate the most important principle in war?"

GEN. SHERMAN'S CONGRATULATORY ORDER.

HEADQUARTERS MILITARY DIV. OF THE MISSISSIPPI, IN THE FIELD, KENESAW MOUNTAIN, Oct. 7, 1864.

SPECIAL FIELD ORDERS No. 86.—The General Commanding avails himself of the opportunity in the handsome defence made of "Allatoona," to illustrate the most important principle in war, that fortified posts should be defended to the last, regardless of the relative numbers of the party attacking and attacked.

Allatoona was garrisoned by three regiments, commanded by Col. TOURTELOTTE, and reinforced by a detachment from a division at Rome, under command of Brig.-Gen. J. M. CORSE, on the morning of the 5th, and a few hours after was attacked by FRENCH's division, of STEWART's corps, two other divisions being near at hand, and in support. Gen. FRENCH demanded a surrender, in a letter, to "avoid a useless effusion of blood," and gave but five minutes for answer. Gen. CORSE's answer was emphatic and strong that he and his command were ready for the "useless effusion of blood" as soon as it was agreeable to Gen. FRENCH.

This was followed by an attack which was prolonged for five hours, resulting in the complete repulse of the enemy, who left his dead on the ground, amounting to more than two hundred, and four hundred prisoners, well and wounded. The "effusion of blood" was not "useless," as the position at Allatoona was and is very important to our present and future operations.

The thanks of this army are due, and are hereby accorded, to Gen. CORSE, Col. TOURTELOTTE, officers and men, for their determined and gallant defence of Allatoona, and it is made an example to illustrate the importance of preparrng ie time, and meeting the danger, when present, boldly, manfully, and well.

This army, though unseen to the garrison, was co operating by moving toward the road by which the enemy could alone escape, but unfortunately were delayed by the rain and mud; but this fact hastened the retreat of the enemy.

Commanders and garrisons of the posts along our railroads are hereby instructed that they must hold their posts to the last minute, sure that the time gained is valuable and necessary to their comrades at the front. By orders of Major-Gen. SHERMAN.

GEN. HOWARD'S ORDER.

The following is the order tendering the thanks of the Army of the Tennessee:

HEADQUARTERS DEPART'T AND ARMY TENNESSEE, NEAR KENESAW MOUNTAINS, October 9.

GENERAL FIELD ORDERS No. 13—While uniting in the high commendation awarded by the General-in-Chief, the Army of the Tennessee would tender through me its most hearty appreciation and thanks to Brigadier-General T. M. CORSE for his promptitude, energy and eminent success in the defence of Allatoona Pass, against a force so largely superior to his own; and our warmest congratulations are extended to him, to Col. TOURTELOTTE, and the rest of our comrades in arms who fought at Allatoona, for the glorious manner in which they vetoed "the useless effusion of blood."

THE SOLDIERS' VOTE FRAUDS.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Thursday, Nov. 3.

THE TRIAL OF COL. NORTH.

The trial of Col. NORTH and associates commenced this morning, before the military commission. The prisoners were present, accompanied by their counsel, Messrs. GILLETT and MCPHERSON. To the charges and specifications, alleging that SAMUEL NORTH, LEVI COHEN and M. M. JONES were guilty of defrauding the electoral rights of soldiers and officers in the United States service, the prisoners' counsel interposed a plea to the jurisdiction of the court, which was argued at length for defence and prosecution, consuming the entire day. The court had arrived at no decision up to the hour of adjournment, and postponed the hearing till to-morrow morning, when the question will be disposed of.

The same court, at the recent trial of FERRY and DONOHUE in Baltimore, maturely considered the same question, and decided in those cases, that it had jurisdiction, and it is hardly possible that in this instance it will reverse its own ruling.

Gov. SEYMOUR's commissioners took no active part in the defence, but simply act as advising and sympathising friends.

THE CASE OF FERRY—FURTHER CONFESSIONS.

FERRY, just convicted and sentenced to State Prison for life, and who on his trial made a partial confession, is now disposed to be more communicative. He says that he had been for some time before his arrest sick of the whole business, and was only waiting to receive replies to letters addressed by him to PETER CAGGER and other prominent Democratic politicians in New-York, which would prove their complicity in these frauds beyond all peradventure, when he intended to voluntarily make a complete expose of the whole thing, and that if the arrest of himself and confederates had been postponed another week, he would have been able to fix the guilt of the transaction from its incipiency where it properly belonged.

ARREST OF LIEUTENANT-COLONEL J. MURPHY.

This morning Capt. J. F. GAINES, of the Seventeenth United States Infantry, arrived here from the front, having in charge Lieut.-Col. JOSEPH MURPHY, of the Seventh New-York Artillery, who, it is stated, is implicated in the election fraud, by signing the blanks. MURPHY was arrested by order of the Secretary of War, and has been committed to the old capitol to await an investigation.

THE ARMY INDIGNANT AT THE FRAUDS.

The knowledge of the perpetration of frauds upon soldiers' votes by SEYMOUR's agents, is creating the most intense indignation throughout the army and especially among those going home to vote. An almost unanimous determination is apparent to repudiate the author of these frauds among those who have voted the Democratic ticket. There is not the slightest doubt but that thousands of ballots will now be cast for the Union ticket by those who but for these outrages would have voted for MCCLELLAN and SEYMOUR.

Trial of Col. North and his Associates—Proceedings of the Court.

WASHINGTON, Thursday, Nov. 3.

The trial of Col. SAMUEL NORTH, the New-York State Agent, and LEVI COHEN and M. M. JONES, was commenced to-day before the United States Military Commission, of which Gen. DOUBLEDAY is President, and Col. J. A. FOSTER Judge-Advocate. Messrs. R. H. GILLETTE and J. D. MCPHERSON appear as counsel for the prisoner.s

The above-named prisoners, together with REEVES and SCHOFIELD, are charged with conduct prejudicial to good order and military discipline, and of fraud toward the New-York State electors, in that they forged the names of officers and soldiers to what purported to be ballots of said soldiers, to be used at the election, to be held on Tuesday next. They are also charged with falsely and fraudulently issuing divers and sundry blanks, which purported to be signed by officers and soldiers in the military service of the United States, authorizing certain parties to cast their votes at the ensuing State and National election, with intent to defraud the true elector of his rights.

Mr. GILLETTE, one of the counsel for the prisoners, pleaded to the jurisdiction of the court, arguing that the court had no jurisdiction: First, over the parties; secondly, over the subject matter; thirdly, that the matter was not within the jurisdiction of the National Government; fourthly, that it was a subject over which the National Government had never legislated; and, fifthly, that there was no law of the Federal Government authorizing the jurisdiction of a military court for the trial of any one not in the military service of the United States.

Mr. GILLETTE argued that these Federal tribunals had not in any way or manner authorized the trial of persons by a Federal court, for crimes committed against the laws of any States or States. If the accused had committed a crime, it was only a violation of a statute of the State of New-York, and, consequently, the tribunals of the United States had no jurisdiction. If an offence had been committed, it was against the laws of New-York, and that same law prescribes the penalties and modes of trial and punishment. If an offence was committed in any other State against a law of the State of New-York, under the extradition law, the party charged with the crime is liable to be taken to New-York. If the parties here charged have not committed a crime against the State of New-York, it must appear affirmatively that the crime is one against the statute laws of the United States; as it has been decided that there can be no offence against the United States, unless it is especially made so by statute. It is not averred that the prisoners have committed any offense against the statutes of the United States. There are no common law offences in the United States, and it is expressly ruled that what are common law offences of England are not offences against the United States. No offence, such as these prisoners are charged with, has been created by a statute of the United States; and consequently this tribunal has no jurisdiction. The court cannot assume the jurisdiction, for no power has been conferred upon it to try cases, and a man cannot be arraigned when it is impossible to put your finger on a law designating the crime. What would be the effect, if this court assumed to execute the laws of the State of New-York? Would an acquittal or a conviction stop the mouth or tongue of justice in New-York? Will this, or any other tribunal, assume to deprive New-York of vindicating her own laws? It matters not what the decision may be here; the State of New-York demands the offender if there is one, and insists on receiving him. It is the justice of New-York that must overtake these men, if they have been guilty. If any other tribunal tries them, what is the measure of punishment for them? In all laws there is a fixed punishment for their violation. But what is to be their punishment here? If there is no limit, then there is no boundary beyond which the court cannot go. There are in this matter grave consequences, both to the laws of the country, and to the parties charged. It is a theory of all courts that have not a general jurisdiction, that before they can carry into effect their findings they must make up the record; and what law can this court cite giving them jurisdiction over this case? Will they assume it, because it would have been a proper subject for legislation?

Mr. GILLETTE then cited the case of a court-martial ordered at Puebla during the Mexican war by an officer named HUGHES, and he was afterward mulcted in heavy damages in the District Court, because the military court had no jurisdiction over the offence charged. The counsel said he believed in all sincerity, that this court had no jurisdiction over the case. If the parties charged with a crime had been in the service of the United States, and had been subject to military order, the court would then have had jurisdiction.

Col. FOSTER, Judge-Advocate, in reply, said that if the last argument of Mr. GILLETTE were true then a military commission could not try a spy or a guerrilla, for they were not subject to the military orders of the United States. The right of trial by jury was a right to which all claimed to be entitled. Yet a guerrilla could not demand such a trial, nor could a traitor demand to be indicted in a court before a trial. In time of war certain peace powers were necessarily suspended. Col. FOSTER referred to the case of VALLANDIGHAM, and quoted largely from the decision of the United States Supreme Court upon the application of Mr. PUGH for VALLANDIGHAM's release, to show that they recognized the fact that in urgent and peculiar cases, military courts had full powers and jurisdiction. In all these cases the state and condition of the country must be considered. It is charged that the rights of the soldiers have been violated; and as they are in the field, and not in a State where there are recognized courts of law, military tribunals are the proper ones to take note of the matter. The District of Columbia has been considered as in the field. The parties charged with crime here are also considered as in the field, and consequently, assuming the fact that the soldiers in the field had been defrauded, and by parties also in the field, they were amenable to answer to a military court as the only one having any proper jurisdiction.

At the conclusion of Col. FOSTER's remarks, the court adjourned, at Mr. GILLETT's request, until ten o'clock to-morrow morning.

THE ELECTION FRAUDS.

They are Spreading Over the State—Let Loyal Men be on the Alert.

The frauds, which begun at Baltimore, are spreading their fruits over this State. The Union County Committee, of Oswego County, issue the following:

BEWARE OF FRAUDS.

To the Union Electors of Oswego County:

The undersigned, Union County Corresponding Committee of Oswego County, take this method of communicating to the Union electors of the county, the fact that they are in possession of information which leaves no room to doubt that the county is already flooded with spurious votes, in the hands of agents, to be offered at the polls on the day of election. It is within our knowledge that spurious votes have been received by parties in this county, votes purporting to come from soldiers whose friends are already in possession of their genuine ones; votes with affidavits—with forged names, fictitious signatures of fictitious officers, and votes purporting to come from persons who have no existence. These packages have been seen and examined by members of this committe, and they correspond perfectly with the work described in the recent Baltimore investigation, leaving no room to doubt that a most gigantic system of fraud has been invented to defraud the people of this State in the coming election.

* * * * * * * *

In this statement we have no desire to unnecessarily alarm the public. We simply state what has come under our personal observation, and the people may rely upon the facts as we have presented them.

In view of the vast interests now at stake, may we not confidently expect that every Union Elector will do his entire duty? Indifference and carelessness now will result in the overthrow of our common country, and in irretrievable ruin. A united and determined effort will result in the defeat and confusion of the wicked men who have conspired against the liberties of our free and great republic. Freemen of Oswego County, let us not appeal to you in vain.

R. DOOLITTLE, Oswego.

Dispatches to the Associated Press.

NATIONAL BANKING.

The official statement shows that on the first Monday in October the resources of the National Banking Association were over $297,000,000, including about $93,250,000 in loans and discounts, and nearly $45,000,000 in specie and other lawful money. Their profits are stated at $6,000,000.

Letter from Maj.-Gen. Butler.

HEADQUARTERS DEPARTMENT OF VIRGINIA AND NORTH CAROLINA, ARMY OF THE JAMES, IN THE FIELD, VIRGINIA, Sunday, Oct. 30, 1864.

SIR:—I have delayed answering the note of your committee, kindly inviting me to address the citizens of New-York, during the political canvass, in the hope that I might find time, when my duties in the field would permit me so to do.

I find it impossible however to visit New-York without a sacrifice of public duties which seem to me imperative. This is a source of regret, if it is possible that anything I might say would influence a single voter in the discharge of the high duty which devolves upon him.

The contest for the life of the nation is transferred from the battle-field to the political canvass, and a victory at the polls by those who love the Union and are willing its perpetuity should be maintained, by the ballot if need be, achieved by the ballot, will go very far to end all contest in the field.

The struggle of rebellion is prolonged by the hope of being able to maintain it against a divided country, and would cease to-day, were it thoroughly made known, as I doubt not it will be by the result of the election, that the country is harmonious and the Government not to be embarrassed by party action. A vote, therefore, for the Union, is equal to a recruit to the army, and the way for the loyal North to avoid another draft on their men and means is to put down the rebellion, is to show a vigorous and united determination to supply the Government with both, if it becomes necessary to use them.

It is an axiom of political economy, that thorough preparation for war by a nation in time of peace will avert war; and it would seem to be not less axiomatic that full and thorough preparation to carry on war, and the appliance of the whole power which the nation possesses will end war.

Not meaning to impugn the patriotism or loyalty of many of those of my fellow-citizens who will support the Chicago platform in the coming election, I only utter the fullest conviction of my judgment in declaring that the action of those who thus use their power as electors is more detrimental to the country, and more beneficial to the rebellion, than if they placed themselves actively in arms side by side with the rebels in the field, and left a united country to sustain the Government and war.

With these opinions, founded upon a very near view of the contest in the field, with means of information scarcely enjoyed by any other, the great interest with which, in common with every well-judging soldier in the field, I watch the contest at home, cannot be surpassed; yet without solicitude, for I am unable to conceive that any very considerable number of men are willing to abandon their country and their manhood at the call of party and faction.

I have the honor to be, very respectfully,
Your obedient servant,
BENJ. F. BUTLER, Major-General.

To HENRY J. RAYMOND, Chairman of the National Executive Committee, New-York.

Address of Gen. Walbridge to the Friends of the Late Senator Douglas.

FELLOW-CITIZENS: Those of us who enjoyed the intimate personal acquaintance of our departed leader will bear enthusiastic testimony to his intense, uncalculating devotion to the Union. Throughout the memorable Winter of 1860-'61, he exhausted the resources of conciliation and of statesmanship in zealous, unselfish efforts to avert the calamity of civil war, because he feared such war, if inaugurated by the Federal authority, would prove the grave of the Union. But when secession and rebellion, culminated in a wanton attack on the National Flag and its heroic defenders, the great champion of Popular Sovereignty threw his whole heart into the struggle for our national integrity, and breathed out his soul in invocations to his countrymen to "fight till the last armed foe expires" in defence of that sacred and precious heritage bequeathed to us by our Revolutionary ancestors.

In the spirit of that invocation, I, one of the humblest but most devoted of your number, who from the hour the first rebel gun was fired at Sumter, have been a War Democrat, and nothing else—entreat you to read carefully and thoughtfully the rival platforms of the Baltimore and Chicago Conventions, respectively, and decide which of them most nearly embodies the sentiment and is imbued with the spirit of our deceased chief, and give your efforts and your votes to the cause which the heart of DOUGLAS must honor and bless.

In a crisis like this, party names, organizations, affiliations, are nothing. The salvation of the Republic is everything. Let no one who ever loved and honored our great statesman be justly reproached with a lack of courage or of self-sacrifice in this hour of the nation's supreme trial.

For myself I can read the Chicago Platform no otherwise than as a white flag of surrender to the rebels—as a confession of defeat by the nation in its struggle to vindicate its just authority and maintain its territorial integrity. And having vainly waited long enough in the hope to see that platform repudiated and set aside by the supporters of the Chicago candidate, I hereby entreat you to unite with me in opposing to the death everything that looks like truckling to traitors—everything than can be received with exultation by the conspirators who broke up the Democratic party and defeated its national candidates simply to create a pretext for rebellion and disunion. I shall cast my vote for the unconditional Union candidates throughout, and entreat all who are proud of their past association and sympathy with STEPHEN A. DOUGLAS to do likewise.

Yours, in the faith and hope of true Democracy.
HIRAM WALBRIDGE.

NEW-YORK, Nov. 2, 1864.

Three Immense Union Meetings in Philadelphia.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Thursday, Nov. 3.

Three monster meetings were held this evening, under the especial supervision of the Union League. Col. R. SACKETT MATTHEWS, of Maryland, delivered a great speech at the Academy of Music; Hon. JERRE CLEMENS, late Senator of Alabama, and WAYNE MCVEIGH appeared at Union League Hall, and Rev. Mr. HATFIELD, of Brooklyn, at the Hall of the Invincibles.

All these three meetings, notwithstanding a rainy evening, were largely attended by intelligent, thinking, patriotic people. It is thought that the majority for LINCOLN and JOHNSON, on next Tuesday, in this city, will show an increase of thirty per cent. over the majority given last month.

The Union League will have a general meeting in Independence-square on Saturday evening. It will be an immense affair.

THE TALLAHASSEE.

She is Reported Inside Delaware Breakwater—Several Vessels Destroyed.

PHILADELPHIA, Thursday, Nov. 3.

A rumor has been brought here by pilots that the pirate Tallahassee came into Delaware Breakwater this morning and destroyed several vessels at anchor there.

No confirmation has yet been received, telegraphic communication not extending to Lewes.

SECOND DISPATCH.

PHILADELPHIA, Thursday, Nov. 3.

The report of the depredations of a pirate vessel in Delaware Bay, comes through pilots who have arrived from Newcastle. They say a report was brought there that a pirate ship came in this morning, and destroyed the pilot-boat Conner, a Government buoying schooner, and other vessels, and afterward landed and robbed the people of Lewes, Del., of a large amount of property. The report is not generally credited here, especially as the 4 o'clock Cape May train brings no confirmation of it.

Amusements.

THE OPERA.—VERDI'S "Rigoletto" will be produced this evening at the Academy of Music with a very strong cast. Mrs. JENNIE VAN ZANDT will make her début as Gilda, together with MORENSI, MASSIMILIANI and BELLINI.

To-morrow, Saturday, a matinée will be given, when "Lucrezia Borgia" will be given, with CAROZZI, ZUCCHI, MORENSI, LOTTI, SUSINI and others.

ITALIAN OPERA IN BROOKLYN.—Last night, the closing one of the current season, MARETZEK's company presented to a crowded and fashionable house, with the same cast as at the New-York Academy, the highly-deserved opera, "Don Giovanni. Perfect success attended the entire performance, and the season, which has been a brilliant one, terminated to the satisfaction of the public and the managers. The subscription-list lengthens for next season, even Brooklyn people being determined henceforth to patronize those of their own household.

Turkies and Thanksgiving.

Collector DRAPER has allowed the use of one of the public stores to receive the packages of turkies and other good things for the soldiers and sailors on the James. All articles sent must be cooked, the turkies wrapped in white paper, and packed in straw, in boxes or barrels, marked "Our Defenders, City Point," and sent to GETTY's store, in the rear of Trinity Church, Trinity-place, from the 17th to the 20th, no later. What with our standing up for our brave boys at the polls, and remembering them on Thanksgiving, I think they will hit the rebels a harder lick than ever. Will the loyal newspapers please keep this before the people until the 20th. If Johnny Nook did try beef why should I not try turkey?

The St. Alban's, Vt., Raiders.

MONTREAL, Thursday, Nov. 3.

An application was made before the Judges yesterday for a writ of habeas corpus for thirteen of the St. Alban's raiders in custody here. The application was decided as illegal, as the case was not out of the hands of the magistrate, and no final commitment had yet been made. The public examination of witnesses begins to-day.

SUBSTANTIAL RECOGNITION OF POLICE SERVICES.—Of the fund of $60,000 which was raised soon after the great July riot for disbursement among members of the police force and others who should receive injuries in suppressing riots, some $35,000 is left in the hands of the committee. They have decided to give Patrolman ROBERT B. DENNISON $200, and Patrolman FRANCIS F. MANN $150, on account of injuries sustained by them in putting down a riot in the Twelfth Ward (Thirtieth Precinct) at the last November election. Accordingly a check for the sums stated was yesterday placed in the hands of THOS. C. ACTON, President of the Board of Police.

THE BROOKLYN COURTS.—The November term of the Kings County Circuit Court will commence on Monday of the third week, when the calendar will be taken up. The Brooklyn City Court will take up the calendar on the third Monday of the month. The Circuit Court will hereafter occupy the room assigned to it in the new Court-house.

FROM JAPAN.

Expedition to the Straits of Ski Mone Seki—The Straits Still Closed Against Foreign Vessels—Need of a National Vessel in Eastern Waters.

Correspondence of the New-York Times.

KANAGAWA, Saturday, Aug. 13, 1864.

The move which we mentioned in our last as about being made toward active operations was inaugurated on the 21st of July, by two of the fleet, a frigate and a gunboat being dispatched for the Straits of Ski Mone Seki, via the Inland Sea.

The object of the expedition was to reconnoitre, and ascertain if the Prince of CHOSHU still occupied the hostile position which he has held toward foreign vessels passing through the Straits, (which he commands,) ever since the attack made on the American ship Pembrooke.

The expedition returned on the 10th of August, and reports substantially the following:

1. That no answer whatever was given to the ultimatum of the treaty Powers by the offending Prince.

2. That on the gunboat approaching the entrance of the Straits, a shot was fired from one of the forts, as a warning for her to proceed no further. Not heeding it, however, she proceeded on a little distance, when a shell was thrown across her bow; whereupon she returned. This, alone, if nothing more, settling the question of the obstruction of the passage of the Straits by hostile means.

A thorough reconnoissance of the vicinity was made, with soundings, in which they were not further molested.

Yesterday a conference was held between the diplomatic military and naval officers of the different treaty Powers, in regard to future actions. The result of the conference has not been made public, yet we have it from reliable sources that a combined movement is soon to be made of all the land and sea forces here (excepting enough to protect this place) toward the opening of the passage, by negotiation first, if possible, and if not, by more tangible means. It is rumored that 1,500 more troops will be brought up from Shanghai before setting out, which, added to the number here, will swell the available force to near 3,000 for land operations alone.

As we have only the Jamestown, a sailing vessel, here, it is possible we shall take no part in the affair, further than giving it our sanction. She will remain as one of the vessels to protect this place. It is a burning shame, and a great source of mortification to all Americans, that our Government can furnish nothing better for our protection and support of our flag, in the whole East, from Bherring's Strait to the Cape of Good Hope, than an old superannuated sailing vessel.

We hope by next mail to give you some further particulars.

Congratulatory Meeting of Marylanders.

Tuesday being the day on which the new Constitution of Maryland went into effect, whereby the slaves of that State were made immediately and unconditionally free, a meeting of Marylanders residing in New-York and vicinity, was convened in the evening at the Club Rooms, No. 710 Broadway, to exchange congratulations over the glorious event. Although there was no public notice given of the meeting, a considerable number of Marylanders came together, in obedience to a most natural instinct, as it were, and gave vent to their jubilant feelings in speeches and resolutions, which will be found printed below.

Dr. J. E. SNODGRASS presided, and WILLIAM B. HAYWARD acted as Secretary. Dr. SNODGRASS on taking the chair, delivered the first address. After thanking his brother Marylanders for the honor of being made their presiding officer on so glorious an occasion, and giving vent to his thoughts and feeling in fitting words of congratulation, which called forth the warmest applause, he proceeded to make a statement of the issue in Maryland which is highly important to the country at large, since it is calculated to silence the charge (made by the opponents of the Administration and of freedom) that Mr. LINCOLN forced the question upon the people of Maryland. Dr. SNODGRASS said: It has gone forth from the lips of pro-slavery orators and the pens of pro-slavery writers, not a few working in the interest of despotism, that Mr. LINCOLN took advantage of the tide of public sentiment, and the weakness of the slaveholding interest, because of the rebellion, to procure emancipation in Maryland. The question had been asked, in the Herald and elsewhere, "Why was not the question of emancipation left to the Legislature, instead of being referred to a convention?" The answer was plump and plain: Because the Constitution of Maryland, which has just been superceded, forbade the Legislature touching the "relation between master and slave," as if some holy thing, not to be profaned by the unholy touch of the peoples' lawmakers. Formerly the boon had rested with the people to "touch" it, if they could return legislators, two-thirds of whom, in both branches of two successive legislatures, had the courage to do so. But the convention which formed the Constitution just superceded, taking the alarm from the freedomward tendency of things in the Border States, took away this poor boon, and inserted a clause utterly prohibiting even their own representatives from touching the sacred "relation" at all. But, most unluckily for slavery, and most luckily for freedom, that same convention provided for the same Legislature, submitting the question of holding a convention at stated periods—every ten years, we understood the speaker to say—and, lo and behold! the propitious time rolled round in the midst of a devastating war, born of slavery. The legislature, as a legitimate, uninterfered duty, submitted the question of ordering a constitutional convention to the people. They voted, by a decided majority, in favor of a convention. A Free State Constitution was the glorious result of the convention's labors. It was submitted, in due turn, to the popular vote, and was adopted without the aid of bayonets, but in spite of a pro-slavery terrorism, in many of the counties, which many present, besides himself, had good reason for knowing to be most crushing to a free expression of opinion or wishes at the polls. Thus, continued Dr. SNODGRASS, Slavery's rebellion became Freedom's opportunity, and gloriously had it been availed, to place Maryland among the great family of free States on the birthday of liberty to her masters as well as their slaves; for he believed the day was not far distant when, forgetting the inconveniences, and even the present losses following the great change, the slaveholders would feel thankful that the blighting curse, as their great PINCKNEY long since proclaimed it to be, was removed from their naturally fruitful soil forever.

Dr. SNODGRASS closed his address amid the most jubilant applause. He was followed by Lambert S. Beck, F. A. Francisco, Eli West, William Robinson, William B. Hayward, P. A. Bailey, M. Edward Stapleton, and others—all Marylanders, residing in New-York and vicinity.

The following resolutions were adopted:

Resolved, That we hail with unfeigned joy the adoption of a Free State Constitution by the people of Maryland, and on this, the birthday of freedom there, we send back our greetings to her people from overflowing hearts.

Resolved, That we congratulate all concerned in this great event—the late masters not less than the former slaves—sincerely believing, as we do, that it will prove to have brought blessings to all concerned, and to have amply compensated the former for any present pecuniary loss which they may feel themselves called upon to bear for the general welfare.

Resolved, That a committee of three, in addition to the officers of this meeting, be appointed to prepare a congratulatory address to the people of Maryland, wherein our views and feelings shall be more fully and formally made known.

After appointing a committee to prepare a congratulatory address to the people of Maryland, to be submitted to another meeting, an adjournment to Friday evening next, at the same place, took place, and was followed by three rousing cheers for "free Maryland."

Chamber of Commerce.

A regular meeting of the Chamber of Commerce was held yesterday afternoon, at 1 o'clock, President A. A. LOW in the chair.

Mr. LATHROP was reelected a member of the Committee on Arbitration.

Mr. J. A. STEVENS, Jr., the Secretary, read a letter from Major-Gen. DIX, regretting that the urgent duties of his office prevented him attending the meeting convened to pay a tribute to the memory of the late JOSHUA BATES, of the firm of BARING BROTHERS, London.

The following important communication from the British Consul at this port, was read:

BRITISH CONSULATE, NEW-YORK, Nov. 2.

SIR: I beg leave to transmit herewith enclosed for the information of the Chamber of Commerce, copies of memorandum drawn up by the Board of Trade, in the years 1851 and 1860, and in the present year, showing the development of British commerce, navigation and finance since the adoption by England of free trade, and the repeal of the British navigation laws.

It is manifest from these statements that the course pursued by Great Britian has been wonderfully advantageous to her interests. Every reduction of duty has produced increase of consumption, and consequently increased demand; and thus the public revenue, and the protective interests have derived benefit from the very measures which were supposed to be injurious to the revenue, and destructive of domestic industry.

Her Britannic Majesty's Government are confident that if other governments should in like manner adopt an act upon the broad principles of free trade, and reduce their duties on the various articles of foreign manufactures which are consumed in their respective countries, they would find their own industry more flourishing, and their own revenue progressively increasing.

It is, therefore, not for British interests alone—but for British and foreign interests alike—that other governments are urged to reduce their rates of custom duties, and thereby encourage beneficial exchange, and improve their friendly relations with other nations.

Feeling assured that these documents will prove interesting to the mercantile community, and make more fully known the great advantages which have accrued not only to the public interests but also to private interests in the United Kingdom from the commercial policy adopted of late years by the British Government, I have taken leave to submit them through you to the consideration of the Chamber of Commerce of this city.

I have the honor to be, Sir, your most obedient servant.

E. M. ARCHBALD, H. B. M. Consul.

A. A. LOW, President of the Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. F. LAWRENCE then moved that the communication and the valuable documents inclosed, be received, which was adopted.

THE KEARSARGE.

The President said that the necessary amount of $25,000, for the purpose of paying a tribute to the officers and crew of the Kearsarge, which destroyed the Alabama, had not yet been raised, and recommended that further efforts be made to procure it.

The Chamber then adjourned.

Politics at Tivoli.

TIVOLI, Dutchess Co., Monday, Oct. 31, 1864.

Editor of the New-York Times.

The Republicans of the district around Tivoli held an enthusiastic meeting in the village of Myersville, on Saturday evening, 29th inst.

From 300 to 400 were present, notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather. Among these were many ladies. The place of meeting was decorated with flags and appropriate transparencies and devices; and a band of music varied the exercises. Gen. J. WATTS DE PEYSTER was selected as presiding officer.

The first speaker was Mr. SYLVESTER, of Kinderhook, the District-Attorney of Columbia County, who, in an elaborate speech, set forth the inconsistencies of the Chicago Platform.

He was followed by Capt. NOYES, late of the staff of Division-Gens. DOUBLEDAY and WADSWORTH, and author of "The Bivouac and Battle-field." He made a telling speech, and paid a thrilling tribute to the memory of that noble patriot and martyr, WADSWORTH, a worthy representative of New-York's devotion to the Union.

He was followed by a young lawyer of New-York City, who delivered a brief and eloquent address, which produced a marked effect, especially upon the foreign element present.

The Chairman then introduced the Rev. R. W. OLIVER, of Lawrence, Kansas, with pointed remarks in regard to the atrocity of the rebels, and the necessity of supporting the army and Administration.

Mr. OLIVER, connected with the army for more than three years, and present in all the battles of the Peninsula, likewise an eye-witness of the fiendish acts of QUANTRIL, riveted the attention of the audience for three-quarters of an hour, and roused the greatest enthusiasm.

This meeting proved the most successful ever held in the neighborhood, and was productive of the happiest effect.

THURSDAY, Nov. 3—P. M.

There was no general activity in Money on the Street to-day, though some of the Stock Brokers who were large buyers of Stocks on Monday and Tuesday, were in the market for considerable sums at 7 ℔ cent., at call. The mere apprehension of a sharp turn, however, induced heavy sales of the Railway Stocks last night, and at the early Stock Exchange Board to-day, and the movement has evidently unsettled confidence in the upward speculation, which promised so much activity on Tuesday.

After the first call of the Railways in the forenoon, there was an improved demand and better prices, but the market was feverish, and so continued through the Second Board in the afternoon.

The Government Gold-bearing Stocks were a fraction easier than yesterday, but in good request, while the Treasury Certificates, on the fear of tight Money, fell off to 95½ ℔ cent. The Miscellaneous Shares sympathized in the unsettled feeling on the Railways.

At 4 o'clock the following quotations were made as compared with the same hour yesterday. The Railways were generally steady, and inclined to firmness, and Gold 234½ ℔ cent.

The Gold Room was under rather less excitement than yesterday and last night, but the fluctuations were frequent and comparatively violent. The registered sales at the Stock Board were at 229@228½ at 10:30 A. M., and at 235½ at 2:30 P. M., while the ups and downs in the Gold Room were between these points and as high as 236 ℔ cent. The export demand continues moderate; the shipment by the Scotia yesterday was $396,000, including $196,000 of California bar Silver. The Coupons due Nov. 1 on the 5.20 Loan and held abroad are now coming forward by every steamer. A rule similar to that of the New-York Stock Exchange, prevails on the Frankfort and Amsterdam Exchange, which delayed a large portion of the Coupons attached to the 5-20 Bonds held in these Dutch and German Capitals on speculation. The amount of the 5-20 Loan held abroad is variously reckoned at from sixty to one hundred millions, and the Gold interest to be paid, from $1,800,000 to $3,000,000 each half-yearly term of November and May.

A robbery of the Mercantile Bank of this city to the enormous sum of $241,000, of which $34,000 is in Gold, by the paying teller, CHARLES WINDSOR, is announced to-day. WINDSOR disappeared on Saturday on the eve of the periodical examination of his accounts, and a large reward is offered for his apprehension. No further explanations are given of the circumstances of the robbery. The affair created great surprise on the Street, as the Bank had been esteemed one of the best moneyed concerns in the city, and hitherto very profitable to the shareholders.

The following bids were made to-day for the City Bank shares.

Butter is in moderate demand, closing at 42c.@53c. for poor to prime State, and 34c.@44c. for Western ℔ lb. Cheese continues in moderate demand at 15c.@24c., the latter for choice, ℔ lb. The week's business in Butter and Cheese Messrs. M. W. STARIN & Co. review thus: "The violent fluctuations and the enormous advance in the rates of Gold that have taken place during the past week, have again completely unsettled the values of every article of produce on the market, and stimulated to an unwonted degree the fever for speculation, that had nearly received its quietus by the heavy decline and immense losses of the past month. Nothing short of a great commercial panic, with its terrible results, will effectually restore trade to a sound, healthy condition, and the extreme violence of the ebb and flow in values clearly indicates a result that is not pleasant to contemplate. The receipts of Butter of all grades of Western and State, have continued very light, dairymen still adhering to the short-sighted policy of holding back stock from market. The advance in Sterling Exchange has enabled English shippers to purchase and the few good to fine invoices that have arrived have been taken at full rates. A large amount of the enormous surplus stock that has been accumulated in the country, could be now placed to exporters at very high rates, but the bulk of the orders must be passed, and the demand unfilled. The demand for California is fairly active at equal rates without the export demand. The market closes bare of stock, and with prices firm at our quotations, but with no prospect of any advance, and with a surety of a decline if the rates of Gold shall decline. City trade continues fairly active. We have no change to note in fresh pails.

The advance in the rates of gold and sterling exchange, and continued favorable advices from the English market, has caused great activity to prevail in the market for Cheese during the week, and the transactions have been unusually heavy. The market closes strong at our quotations, and comparatively bare of stock. We quote:

NEWS OF THE DAY.

THE REBELLION.

A dispatch from Ogdensburgh announces the presence of a large number of armed men on the islands in the St. Lawrence, above and below that city, and likewise the presence of many strangers in the streets of that city. Fears of an extensive raid prevailed, and arms and troops were sent for.

The Mayor yesterday telegraphed to Secretary Seward, in reply to the latter's notification of a conspiracy on foot to fire the principal Northern cities, Nov. 8; that he has no fears of such conspiracy, and that he will take every precaution, and be amply prepared to meet such an one, should it exist.

Two hundred Union cavalry, who were recently sent across the Mississippi from Memphis, to hunt guerrillas, came upon a rebel force numbering six or eight hundred men, near Marion, and were compelled to fall back to the river, where the rebels were driven back by a gunboat.

A Union cavalry force of five hundred men, sent out last week from Little Rock, Ark., encountered the pickets of a large force of Texan Rangers, at Camden. A dash was made into the town, and after a severe fight the rebels were driven out, leaving a number of horses and twenty-five killed in our hands.

A writ of habeas corpus was applied for in the case of Hutcheson, one of the St. Alban's robbers, before Mr. Justice Badgley, in Montreal, on Saturday. The Judge granted the writ on technical grounds; but the prisoner was immediately after arrested on a charge of murder.

GENERAL NEWS.

A German mass meeting (Union) will be held to-night, at Cooper Institute, at which Carl Schurz and Dr. Fred. Schultz, will make addresses. It will be a huge gathering.

A meeting of merchants, bankers, and business-men, favorable to the election of Lincoln and Johnson, will be held in front of the Custom House, this afternoon at 3 o'clock. Eminent speakers will be present, and undoubtedly there will be a host assembled.

A meeting of the loyal women of New-York will be held this evening at the Church of the Messiah, on Broadway, opposite the New-York Hotel. Among the speakers expected are Senator Sumner, Gov. Pierpoint, of Virginia, Rev. Dr. Bellows and Wm. Curtis Noyes, Esq.

The Grand War Eagle and Union Torchlight procession takes place this evening. It will be one of the finest political displays ever made in this city. After the parade there will be a mass meeting at the Union-square.

The Germans of the Eighth Ward held a spirited Union meeting last evening, as did those of the Twelfth. The Twentieth Ward Unionists also had a large gathering.

The Aldermanic Committee on Retrenchment and Reform yesterday formally adhered to their preliminary decision, that they have no power to administer a legally binding oath, and therefore that an investigation by them of the Mayor's charges against the City Inspector would be profitless. Ex-Judge Whiting, counsel for the Mayor, urged that the City Inspector should join the committee in asking the Common Council to appoint a joint committee to investigate. Mr. Graham, counsel to the City Inspector, declined to do so, regarding such a step by Mr. Boole as self-impeaching. The Committee then adjourned. They will report to the Board on Monday, and will recommend that a joint committee be appointed.

The Board of Aldermen met yesterday. Their session was short. The only noticeable matter that came before them was a communication from the Street Commissioner, announcing that the New-York Gas Company had given notice that, from the 1st inst., they would charge the city the same prices they obtain from private consumers. Referred. The Board adjourned to 1 P. M. on Monday. The Councilmen had no quorum, and stand adjourned to 2 P M. on Monday.

The Gold Room was under less excitement yesterday. The price at 4 o'clock 234¼ ℘ cent. The Railway Stocks left off steady after much feverishness in the market through the day. Money 7 ℘ cent., in good request.

Business in produce and merchandise exhibited rather less animation yesterday. Prices of the principal kinds of domestic produce opened languidly, but closed rather more firmly. Freights were very dull.

Last evening about half-past five o'clock, as the New-York Hotel coach was proceeding down Broadway, when near the corner of Fourth-street, one of the wheels came off, and the coach fell over on its side. There were on and in the coach a family of eleven persons, from New-Orleans, named Buddeck. The mother, seven children and two servants were inside. All escaped unhurt.

A mass-meeting is appointed for to-day (Friday) at Carmel, the county-seat of Putnam County. It is expected that this will be the largest gathering ever held in the county. Among the distinguished speakers announced, are Hon. Henry B. Cowles, (formerly Member of Congress from that district,) William H. Burleigh, Judge Tyler, of Connecticut, Judge Whiting, and J. T. Williams, of New-York. Let the Highlands ring with cheers for the Union.

At the Brooklyn Athenæum, on Saturday, at 8 o'clock P. M., a Republican Glee Club will serenade the Union War Democrats, by singing four new hymns and songs, set to patriotic and national music. Hon. Edwards Pierrepont, Gen. Daniel E. Sickels and David Coddington, Esq., are invited to speak at this musical concert. Gen. Banks is expected to arrive in Brooklyn in time to speak at the meeting. Good seats are reserved for the ladies.

The work of demolishing the Manassas Gap Road continues, and its use has now been wholly abandoned. The guerrillas in that quarter will now be compelled to seek a new field for their peculiar operations.

Gerrit Smith will answer such political questions as Democrats or Republicans may put to him, at Cooper Institute to-day at 2 P. M.

Gen. Sibley has received dispatches from Gen. Sully, dated at Crow Creek Agency, (Fort Thompson,) on the Missouri, Oct. 10, announcing his arrival at that post from Fort Rice. He states that after he left Fort Rice, three head chiefs of the hostile Indians came in with a flag of truce. They had been in the battles this year, and acknowledged that they were badly beaten. They said that they were not a match for the whites, and wanted to know on what terms they could make peace. The commanding officer replied that they could have peace on condition that they behave themselves, and would not molest the whites. One of the chiefs is leader of the Unkpapa band, and named Bare Ribs. They went away again, saying that they would come back with some of their head men, and hold a conference upon the subject. The friendly Indians at the fort say they have no doubt they will return and make peace. As their camp is a long distance away, they may be prevented, by cold weather, from returning before Spring.

Rev. Ira Chase, D. D., died at his residence in Newton Centre, Mass., on Tuesday, aged 71 years. He was formerly a Professor at Newton Theological Seminary, and is well known, especially among the Baptists, for his theological writings.

The Union men of Providence, R. I., held a large and spirited mass meeting on Wednesday. At the lowest estimate, ten thousand people were present. Gen. Burnside and other distinguished gentlemen addressed the meeting, and awakened the greatest enthusiasm in their auditors.

The McClellanites assembled in force last evening, at Union-square, to the number, perhaps, of two thousand, many of whom were boys. Every possible attempt was made to get up a little enthusiasm, but without effect. The meeting was, in all respects, an utter fizzle. The speeches at the different stands were, as usual, devoted entirely to the abuse of Abraham Lincoln and the Government, and were listened to by the remarkably small audiences in a manner which plainly showed they cared but little for the speaker or anything he was talking about. There was no interest betrayed, and early in the evening the meeting adjourned, the prime movers evidently much chagrined at their ill success.

The German Loyal Union Lincoln and Johnson Club of the Tenth Ward held a spirited meeting last evening in their old wigwam, No. 24. Mr. Alfred Erbe addressed the audience in an able and eloquent manner. The independent loyal men of the Tenth Ward are enthusiastic in their support of Lincoln and Johnson.

Maj.-Gen. Butler arrived in town yesterday, accompanied with his staff, and put up at the Fifth-avenue Hotel. He comes here with orders to report to Major-Gen. Dix for duty. It is understood that he will be present at the great Union meeting in Wall-street this afternoon.

Chas. Windsor, for fourteen years paying teller of the Mercantile Bank, No. 191 Broadway, was missed on Saturday, and has not been heard of since. His cash account shows a deficiency of $207,000 in notes and $34,000 in gold. The bank offers $5,000 reward for his arrest, and $15,000 for the recovery of the money.

The number of emigrants who arrived at this port last month was 15,792. The whole number arrived this year up to November 3, was 165,262; same period last year 134,815.

Orville K. Wood, Esq., of Clinton County, who, by his zeal and energy in ferreting out the frauds in the soldiers' votes, has drawn upon himself the most malignant abuse from the Copperheads, is vouched for by the principal citizens of Clinton County as a gentleman of the highest principle and the strictest integrity.

The Marylanders will meet at No. 710 Broadway, this evening, to adopt an address of congratulation to the friends of freedom in Maryland.

We learn from a special telegram in the Montreal Gazette that the delegates from the Lower Provinces visited the Chaudier Falls and the new Parliament and departmental buildings at Ottawa on Monday, and afterwards partook of a dejeuner given by the contractors,—Mr. McGreevy presiding. In attempting to reply to a toast, the Hon. J. A. Macdonald was so unwell that he could only get through the first sentence, which conveyed the information officially, that Ottawa had been chosen for the capital of the confederation. Hon. Mr. Galt, Attorney-General Henry, of Nova Scotia, Attorney-General Johnson, of New-Brunswick, Hon. Mr. Coles of Prince Edwards' Island, and the Mayor of Ottawa, were the other speakers, but no fresh disclosures were made. Mr. Macdonald hoped to be able to go on to-day with the delegates to Toronto, where the Canadian Ministers are to take leave of them, and they will then proceed to Hamilton and Niagara Falls on their way home.

One of the most numerous audiences that ever assembled in that edifice gathered in the Academy of Music to listen to a lecture by Bishop Simpson, of Pennsylvania, on "Our National Conflict." The address was able, logical and convincing, and was greeted with the utmost enthusiasm throughout.

The Resisting Capacity of the Rebellion—Its Rate of Disappearance.

The rebellion has been deprived, by three years of war, of two-thirds of its original area. That, in itself, shows great progress toward its complete extinction; yet it but inadequately measures the real progress. The fact is, that, as the war proceeds, the resisting powers of the rebellion diminish in a constantly accelerated ratio; and there is every reason to believe that it will not take the same proportionate time to overcome the last stage of the rebellion that it did to prevail over the first.

Geographically, it is not enough to say that we have driven back the rebellion to one-third of its original occupation, inasmuch as the two-thirds conquered by us was many times more tenable by the rebels, and more important to us than the remainder. We have driven the rebels from their mountain strongholds to the lowlands, where our armies can in future move with vastly greater facility and security. We have acquired possession of the Mississippi, which permanently cuts the rebellion in twain, and of all the coast line save the harbor of Wilmington. We have gained positions where we are, comparatively, independent of the seasons. Sherman's great army has penetrated far South, where the roads are almost as practicable in mid-winter as in mid-summer. Grant has so planted himself that his position amounts to a siege of the rebel Capital. His railroad communications and solid corduroy roads extend to all parts of his lines, and the Winter months will hardly at all obstruct his operations. Thus we have the least difficult portion of the rebel territory to operate in, and an opportunity, such as we have never before had, of pushing forward our work continuously. These two circumstances must greatly tend to abridge the last stage of the war.

But more important yet is the vast decrease in the fighting capacity of the rebels. In the first stage of the war they had the very flower of the South in their armies, both as officers and as rank and file—men of the finest physical vigor, and of the most fiery valor. But all these old Stonewall Jackson brigades have nearly passed away; and their places are supplied by men much inferior both in body and spirit, who habitually shun battle rather than seek it. There has been no such depreciation in the stuff of our armies, for the simple reason that we have had vastly larger resources to draw from. It is a notorious fact that since the war began, no call of the President has been responded to by a better class of soldiers than the last. It is equally notorious that the last conscriptions of the Jeff. Davis Government have secured but comparatively few who are really fit for military hardships. To overcome an army, say of a hundred thousand, composed of such material as is left of the rebel chiefs, must require nothing like the time and effort necessary to put out of the fight a hundred thousand such as first took the field. We shall miscalculate greatly if we do not bear in mind that the fighting material South has fallen off not in quantity alone, but even more yet in quality.

Besides all this, it must be remembered, in judging of the time necessary to finish the rebellion, that it is a natural law of exhaustion to become more rapid as it nears its end. The last quarter tells five times more upon the wind and bottom of a racer than the first. A closing round taxes the muscle of a pugilist ten times more than a round in the beginning. Any struggle may be carried on for awhile without any special damage to the vital energies; but when these energies once begin to flag, their collapse comes on with great rapidity. We shall find that similar blows upon the rebellion for the next six months will go much further toward bringing the rebellion to our feet than those of the last six. The power of endurance, in this last stage, is decreasing at a very rapid rate.

Every way, then, we are entitled to believe that the final exhaustion of this rebellion will come much sooner than any calculation simply by the standard of the past would disclose. It is not wise to try to fix upon any point of time when the rebellion will be capable of no further effort, for this must depend in some degree on contingencies impossible to foresee. Nor is it necessary. It is enough to know that the rebels have lost all their best advantages and reliances, and that, by an inevitable law, their remaining energies must sink more and more rapidly; and that the result of all this must be their absolute exhaustion not far hence at furthest.

A Few Words to Patriotic Democrats.

We believe there are considerable numbers of Democrats who have come to the conclusion that Mr. Lincoln must and ought to be elected, but who will vote for Gen. McClellan because they wish to retain their hold of the party organization and the local nominations. If the choice rested with them, whether they would incur all the risks of McClellan's administration under his present influences, they would hesitate, and the most would vote for the Union candidate. But they see the tide of popular opinion. They are morally certain Mr. Lincoln must be President, and as, in their view, one vote is of little importance, they prefer to remain with their old friends in the Democracy, and preserve their influence in the elections for the ward, town and county offices. They hope and believe one way, and vote another.

We do not dispute that the growing conviction of Democrats that the Union candidate must be elected, is correct; but we ask all such persons whether they are acting a true and manly part. The highest duty of the citizen is the depositing his vote. All who drop their little pieces of paper into the ballot-box on the 8th of November next, declare before the world whom they would have to rule over them for the coming four years, and what they desire the policy of the country to be. To be false in a vote is almost as bad as to be hypocritical in a creed. Such neglect of duty saps the very foundation of our political system. The vote is the citizen's "confession of faith;" it is his share in the government of his country. If he votes wrongly, he is responsible to his honor and to the higher court of conscience for the consequences. He has no right to shirk it, or to do his part carelessly. If all acted as we believe many of our fellow-citizens will act on the presidential election, the Republic would come to ruin. Every man should weigh each candidate, and, above all, the policy he represents, and then, as he would act before the great court of all human actions, solemnly decide where he will throw his influence, and give it there heartily and manfully.

Moreover, our Democratic friends must remember that the great result of this election is to be the effect on the minds of the rebels. They know as well as we do, that the hope of McClellan's election is now the greatest support of the insurgents. They fight the harder and have the more confidence since the promulgation of the Chicago platform. They believe, and with much justice, that the success of the Democratic candidate would secure them an armistice; and they understand that an armistice means peace and independence. The election of Lincoln would show them that the North was thoroughly determined; that it would accept nothing but the restoration of the Union, and then we should probably find the masses leaving their leaders and seeking terms. But this happy result, so much desired by all parties, would not be accomplished by a bare party majority for our candidate. With Mr. Lincoln as President on a small majority, the rebels would at once look at the immense minority, whom they would naturally consider to be in their favor, and determine to persevere, hoping that time and opportunity would enable them to make use of this great party for their favorite end—the revolutionary overthrow of our own Government. An election won by a small majority might prolong the war for years. Every Democrat, then, who looks for a speedy peace, who would cut off the last hope of the rebels for an independent Confederacy, who in his heart doubts the good result of Gen. McClellan's being President of these United States, should openly and with full explanation of his reasons, deposit his vote for Mr. Lincoln, leaving manfully behind him all the small allurements and profits of his party in the local offices. He should act like a man of honor and conscience, and help to swell the majority, already sure for the Union candidate.

Many honorable Democrats of the city are already coming over publicly to our party, not from any personal motives, but for good reasons of public policy. We ought to hear of more in the small towns and villages.

The German Mass Meeting.

The grand German Union meeting, to be held to-night in the Cooper Institute, with such orators as Carl Schurz and Dr. Schuetz, shows that the German-Americans are fully awake to the importance of this election.

To the German mind, the opposing subjects of "State rights" and "Union" are old and familiar topics. No people, the world over, has had such bitter cause to curse the theory of a loose Confederacy, or to appreciate the value of Union, as the German. Their history is a consistent record of the oppression of small States by large, and popular rights torn away through the division and jealousies of petty communities—of the property of the masses consumed by separate governmental establishments for each little State, and intercourse checked and business impaired by innumerable barriers thrown between "Sovereign States" which were often no larger than New-York or Pennsylvania. Our German fellow-citizens know too well what disunion costs, what burdens it lays on the peasantry, what power it gives to ambitious leaders and oppressive rulers, to wish to incur any danger of it here. For centuries the popular aspiration of the great German people has been against the South Carolina heresy—the independence of the members of a Confederacy—and in favor of the doctrine of our fathers—a Union of the people. When enjoying here at length the benefits of a truly Republican Union, they certainly will not be the first to offer a peace to the rebels, which can mean only the independence of the Confederacy and the disorganization of our country.

Then the thoughtful Germans in America see, far more clearly than do many of our (so-called) Democrats, that this is the old European struggle, fought on a new soil, between reaction and progress, the love of power and the passion for liberty, the masses and those who would use them for their own selfish purpose; between an aristocracy founded on the plantation and the slave-pen, and a democracy resting on the school and an equal ballot. It cannot be doubted where a truly progressive and intelligent German will be on such a question. And it is most natural that on the list of the speakers and officers of this great meeting, should be names which are linked with heroic though unsuccessful struggles against arbitrary power, and with the most entire devotion to popular rights.

Such meetings will convince the ignorant Germans what true Democracy is, and show them what a miserable catch-word has been used to beguile them to the party of oppression and reaction. They will learn that the laboring man's party is that which supports Union and Liberty, as against secession and a slave aristocracy; that there is no possible danger of any immigration of the negroes, after emancipation, to the North, as climate chains them to the South; and that a lasting peace, with cheap prices and labor well employed, can only be won by the election of Mr. Lincoln, and the breaking up of the Southern armies. All the sophistries which have carried some of the poor Germans to the support of a reactionarty party, like the Peace Copperheads, will be cleared up. They will learn that slavery, not liberty, caused this war; that they have nothing to fear from negro competition or indiscriminate amalgamation; that without reunion, there must be eternal war in this country; and that reunion can only come through the triumph of the Union arms and Northern principles.

If they want taxes redoubled, annual drafts, and all the burdens of a disunited Germany, let them elect McClellan, and offer the Confederacy a peace which will bring perpetual war. Peace, they must remember, can only come through Victory and Union.

The Douglas Democrats.—The Hon. Isaac N. Arnold, of Illinois, has recently made public a letter written to him by Hon. George Ashmun, giving an account of an interview which Senator Douglas had with President Lincoln at the outbreak of the war, and shortly before the decease of the great Democratic leader. Mr. Douglas himself wrote out a brief account of the conversation, which he desired telegraphed over the country, and the original manuscript of which is in possession of Mr. Ashmun, who was present at the interview, and whose letter we published a day or two ago.

President Lincoln, at this interview, cordially welcomed Mr. Douglas, and read to him the draft of the proclamation which he had decided to issue calling for 75,000 volunteers. Mr. Ashmun says:

> "As soon as the reading ended, Mr. Douglas rose from his chair and said, 'Mr. President, I cordially concur in every word of that document, except, that instead of a call for 75,000 men, I would make it 200,000. You do not know the dishonest purposes of those men (the rebels) as well as I do'—and then he asked us to look with him at the map which hung at one end of the President's room, where in much detail he pointed out the principal strategic points which should be at once strengthened for the coming contest. He enlarged at length upon the firm, warlike footing which ought to be pursued, and found in Mr. Lincoln an earnest and gratified listener. It would be impossible to give in detail all the points presented by him and discussed with the President; but I venture to say that no two men in the United States parted that night with a more cordial feeling of a united, friendly and patriotic purpose than Mr. Lincoln and Mr. Douglas."

In this connection we may make note of the appeal which has been put forth by Gen. Walbridge, of this city, "to the friends of the late Senator Douglas." As one of the "humblest but most devoted" friends of the deceased chief, he invokes the disciples of the Western statesman to give their "efforts and votes to the cause which the heart of Douglas must honor and bless." He adds:

> "In a crisis like this, party names, organizations, affiliations, are nothing. The salvation of the Republic is everything. Let no one who ever loved and honored our great statesman be justly reproached with a lack of courage or of self-sacrifice in this hour of the nation's supreme trial. I hereby entreat you to unite with me in opposing to the death everything that looks like truckling to traitors—everything that can be received with exultation by the conspirators who broke up the Democratic party and defeated its national candidates simply to create a pretext for rebellion and disunion. I shall cast my vote for the unconditional Union candidates throughout, and entreat all who are proud of their past association and sympathy with Stephen A. Douglas to do likewise."

Democracy and the War.

We hope none of our readers neglected to read Mr. Coddington's speech which we published in yesterday's Times. It is one of the sharpest, clearest and most powerful indictments ever framed against a party which has proved false to its principles, as well as to the honor and welfare of the country. Passages of it are as full of fervid eloquence as anything in the speeches of Rufus Choate, who was the greatest master this country has ever seen, of his rich and peculiar style of oratory. Take the following paragraph, stating the position of the American people in this great crisis:

> "The American people are a people of sentiment. They are gazing down into the profoundest depths of this question. As surely as the springs of the earth are gushing pure and sweet beneath the blood of battle, just so sure, under all the horrors of war, do we behold the refreshing streams of future order, stability and peace. The American people are also a business people. They have estimated the profits and losses of this war; they have dropped in one scale the tears, the graves, the debts, the taxes, the crippled limbs and ruined homes, and in the other scale they have placed the unity, the progress and the prosperity of America, and they know how such profits outweigh all its losses. They see rising from the crimson mist a firmer, securer nationality, no longer at the mercy of the sophist or the conspirator, just as restricted, but more respected of all States and nations. We see, too, the States—always inviolate within their just sphere—no longer, with an arrogant intrusiveness, aspiring to unsettle the grander guardianship of the nation. If Abraham Lincoln is the tyrant and imbecile they call him, the Democratic party had a great card in their hands, and the people will hold them responsible for trifling with the crisis, and throwing away the game. If the President is weak, better a weak man with a strong cause than an indifferent man with no cause at all. Professing to be horrified at the usurpations of the Administration, the Chicago party have left the people no alternative but to hold on to Mr. Lincoln or give up the country."

Take, too, this strong, spirited, just statement of the present attitude of the Democratic party:

> "Where is that inspired, courageous old Democratic party which Jefferson founded, Jackson immortalized and James Buchanan buried? Some years ago there could be seen stranded on the shores of Long Island Sound the shattered remnants of a once noble steamer. Its guards were down, its rudder gone, its machinery broken and useless. Half blackened and consumed by storm and conflagration, its name still glared out in full capitals; the bell which had so often rung the public to harbor and home, still sounded meaninglessly with every shifting gale. Just so stands the Democratic party. The same sound still calls to us, but it is the toll above the wreck. The same grand old name still waves upon the campaign-banners, waylaying us for our suffrages; but the vessel we trusted to carry us safely through every sea, once so powerful and popular, now drifts before the storm, a shrunken, helpless and snarling minority. Why is it that every east wind drizzles upon us a Democratic defeat? Why is it that every northern blast whirls down upon us a Republican majority? Why is it that the West, to which we are told to look for clear skies and fair weather, the West is black with the popular refusal to restore this so-called Democracy? Alas! Uninterrupted prosperity has weaned patriotism and wisdom from politics. Little men have been permitted to trifle with great principles, and death or disgust swept all the Democratic giants from the helm."

His picture of the failure of this war will stand as a permanent record of the falsehood and cowardice of the Chicago Convention:

> "They call the war a failure, then nominate a failure to prove it, then get that failure to write the platform a failure, and now it only wants one more failure on the 8th of November to finish the concern. Indeed, has all this tramp, and shot and blood availed nothing? Speak, howling Jeff., with your failing spirits and your disbanding armies. Speak, ye thousand miles of sea-coast, with but one port to welcome the sneaking smuggler to your traitorous breast. Speak, Sherman, with your firm foot on their guilty hearthstones, where you but stamp it and insurrection, starved and ragged, flies wailing before you. Speak, worthless currency, hopeless heresy, heartbroken community. Your failing tears, your running slaves, your dying brothers, Northern traitors stunned, foreign intervention dead, do you tell me Abraham Lincoln's gripe has no vigor in it? You have tried him in war, you have tried him in diplomacy, you have wrestled with him at the foot of every throne in Europe. You have confronted him for thousands of miles along river, marsh and forest, where he has tracked you with the Indian's scent to save you from the Indian's destiny. You have summoned to your aid swamp-fever, ambush, tomahawk and torpedo. You promised the world that you would harness the North to your pole, driving the continent in double harness, and where are you now?—a nameless, penniless, shivering outlaw. Shrinking from the charter, signed "George Washington," and dying by inches with the powder and ball of Abraham Lincoln. Is this a failure, oh, successful Vallandigham, with that hundred thousand adverse majority gazing down upon your sinking form?"

Eighth Congressional District.—In another column we publish a letter from Hon. B. F. Manierre, withdrawing from the Congressional canvass in the Eighth District. This leaves Mr. Wm. E. Dodge the only Union candidate in that district, and renders his election, with proper efforts on the part of the Union men, reasonably certain.

Mr. Manierre's action in this matter is eminently judicious, and entitles him to the respect and confidence of the Union party He has many warm and devoted friends in that district, as well as throughout the city, and as they were early in the field, they very naturally insisted on his being a candidate. Mr. M., however, has yielded to the necessities of the case, and has waived his personal claims to the evident wish of the voters of the district that Mr. Dodge should receive the support of the Union party. Mr. D. is a merchant of good abilities, wide experience in business, and of great liberality. He has commended himself to the regard and favor of all our citizens by his ardent and whole-souled devotion to the Union cause. We trust that the Union voters of the district will see that he is elected.

The Merchants' and Bankers' Meeting To-day.—Among the speakers at this meeting to-day will be Richard H. Dana, Esq., whose high-standing and effective eloquence as an orator are well-known, and will be heard with great profit to-day.

RELATIVE POSITION OF THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY AND THE REBEL LEADERS.

Vallandigham's Declaration of What the Democratic Party Will Do?—Testimony of Boyce and Johnson—Unity of Democratic Intentions and Rebel Expectations.

The Breches, Thursday, Oct. 27, 1864.

It happens opportunely that we have, at this moment, authoritative declarations of what the Democratic party will do, if successful, and what the rebel party expects it to do. These are exact supplements to each other; and no speech made by any Union orator, can have or should have half the effect of these authoritative declarations. Part of them have been published in the Times, and another part have not. I shall begin with the last. On the night before the October election in Ohio, Clement L. Vallandigham made a speech to a large audience, at Canton, Stark County, Ohio, in which he set forth the Democratic idea of the war. No man in the United States has more right to speak for the Democratic party than Vallandigham. If Belmont, or the World deny this, ask then how he came to be nominated by acclamation, as Governor of Ohio in 1863? How he came to be commander of the Order of the Sons of Liberty? How he came to be a delegate to Chicago? How he came to be on the Committee of Resolutions? How he came to make the Chicago Platform? And how he was able to force that platform on the friends of McClellan? The fact is entirely undeniable, that no man has more right to speak for the Democratic party than Vallandigham. There can be no appeal from him to the platform of the party; for he made the platform. His authority is the best we can get. He has the official commission of the party. Well, what did this leader of the Democratic party say at Canton? Among other things he said this:

> "Give the Democracy power for the next four years, and not a drop more of blood will be shed nor another human life sacrificed in this horrible, cruel war. We shall do as our fathers did—appeal to the common sense and hearts of the people—cultivate a spirit of goodwill instead of hate—resort to the arts of the sensible statesman instead of murderous and destructive war," &c., &c.

I don't ask whether Vallandigham is right on principle; that this is a horrible, cruel, murderous and destructive war, which like that against Great Britain in 1814, was declared by Caleb Strong & Co. to be unnatural and unholy. Perhaps Mr. Vallandigham is right. We are only concerned now with the preordained course of the Democratic party, if it succeeds. There it is authoritatively declared, not another gun is to be fired, not another drop of blood shed in this horrible and cruel war. Will any man dare to stand up in New-York and say this is not the principle and the intended course of the Democratic party? Then, I say, he knows nothing of that party. Powell (Senator from Kentucky) declared in the Senate, February, 1863, that nineteen-twentieths of that party are for peace; and did his colleagues contradict him? Not one of them. Vallandigham's audience, on the contrary, applauded him. Voorhees, the confederate of Vallandigham and Pendleton, is reëlected, holding opinions as unqualifiedly rebel as those of Clay or Holcomb recently at Niagara. There are yet a few War Democrats acting with what is called the Democratic party; but they are few, and are deluded by a name, without the substance. Here, then, we have an authoritative declaration of what the Democratic party will do, if successful—an immediate cessation of hostilities, and an immediate acknowledgment of rebel independence, leaving the bones of our glorious dead in a foreign land—this glorious inheritance of freemen frittered away, and the unerring finger of the world's scorn pointing at us, and history crying Shame! shame! shame! These men inherited a continent destined to glory and Freedom, and were so given up to faction and mammon that they could not preserve it. Oh, save us from such an epitaph, written on the enduring records which describe a nation's ruin. Is this Democracy? Then be it far from me and mine. "Procul, O! procul, esto profani!" Such is the intention of the Democratic party, as defined by its great leader, Vallandigham. Now, let us turn to the rebel supplement; we have the Democratic intention, let us see the rebel expectation.

Mr. W. W. Boyce, of South Carolina, and Mr. Herschel V. Johnson, of Georgia, two persons who had much to do in getting up this war,—have their letters in the New-York Times, giving their views of getting peace. Mr. Boyce congratulates himself, that there is a party in the North which is "rational on the subject of slavery." (We all know what that means;) and that the action of the Chicago Convention is the most inspiring, from the North since the war begun. He then says:

> "This party proposes that the war shall cease, at least temporarily, and that all the States should meet in amicable council, to make peace if possible. This is the most imposing demonstration in favor of peace made at the North since the war broke out. I think our only hope of a satisfactory peace, one consistent with the preservation of free institutions, is in the supremacy of this party at some time or other. Our policy, therefore, is to give this party all the capital we can. You should, therefore, at once, in my opinion, give this party all the encouragement possible, by declaring your willingness to an armistice, and a convention of all the States in their sovereign capacity, to enter upon the subject of peace."

There you have what ex-Congressman, traitor Boyce expects from Chicago's candidate and platform. They are to give the "Democratic party" all the encouragement and help possible, that they may have have a cessation of hostilities and a convention, which the States shall meet in their "sovereign capacity;" that is the confederate independence acknowledged. Vallandigham says the Democratic party will do this, and Boyce says the Confederates expect it to be done. What says Mr. Herschel V. Johnson? He says the same thing.

> "The North can have peace at any moment. All that they need to do is to let us alone—cease to fight us; or if they prefer, agree to negotiate a peace on terms honorable to both parties. We are willing, always have been willing, and shall continue to be willing. But as long as they fight us the war must continue. For what can we do but defend? We have no power to stop their fighting short of unconditional submission to the terms announced by the President of the United States."

Here is what he expects of McClellan and George Pendleton, Esq. They expect us to stop fighting right in the midst of success, and negotiate a peace acknowledging the Confederate independence. Mr. Vallandigham says the "Democratic party" won't fight another hour; and Boyce and Johnson say, that is just what we expect you to do; let us alone, treat us like gentlemen, and let us dismember the Republic, insult you, and trample upon you, just as much as we please; for if you don't, we shall have to submit! Mark! These fellows don't pretend to be ignorant of the fact. They expect to be beaten into perfect submission if we can't be humbugged into giving a success to Democratic McClellan.

This simple-minded Herschel V. Johnson reminds me of an occurrence which happened on the highway. A stout, dark-looking man met a gentleman on the road and demanded five dollars; and said he, "if you don't give it, I shall do a deed which I shudder to think of!" The gentleman, alarmed, gave him the money, and said, "What would you have done?" "Sir," said he, "I should be obliged to go to work!" If we don't give them a cessation of hostilities," and acknowledge their independence, they will be obliged to submit! Well, in the name of common sense, why shouldn't they submit? Have they not exhibited enough of human depravity? Have they not had woes and suffering enough? Or do they wish to be totally destroyed? The last is what they are fast approaching.

The steps of war, which were slow at first, will be rapid in the future. As their territory is diminishing, their lines shortened, their men dying, their fortresses taken, and their means dwindling, the "last ditch" will come with quick steps. Read DAVIS' speeches, look at his threat of driving the Union armies back in thirty days, and see what has been done! But, enough. I present here simply the supplementary evidence that the Democratic party intends, and the rebel party expects it, to make peace on rebel terms, acknowledging the independence of the rebel Confederacy, and leaving but the fragments of our once united and glorious republic. I can assure Messrs. VALLANDIGHAM, SEYMOUR, McCLELLAN & Co., on the one hand, and Messrs. BOYCE, DAVIS, JOHNSON & Co., on the other, that their intentions and expectations will never be fulfilled. On the 8th of November, the last hope of the rebels and the last party which can aid them will perish together. The nation will emerge from that battle united, harmonious and successful; and

"All the clouds that lowered upon our house,
In the deep bosom of the ocean buried."

So, I believe, and trust, the Democratic party has realized the old maxim, "quem deus vult perdere prius dementat." And what madness! What deliriums have governed the South! But, is there not a Providence around us? Is there not a Divine hand shaping all events to a just end? When the grass has grown green over these graves—when these ruins are rebuilt—will not posterity enjoy a better freedom—a nobler structure of political institutions?

A VETERAN OBSERVER.

THE ELECTION.

Perplexities of Voters—Who Can Vote and Who Cannot.

We are in receipt of numerous letters touching so-called disputed points about residence, the right to vote, &c. We append a sample of each, with replies:

TEMPORARY RESIDENCE.

NEW-YORK, Wednesday, Nov. 2, 1864.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

SIR:—Does a citizen of the United States, and former voter in this city, forfeit his right to vote for President by having resided for three (3) months in another State, said citizen having returned to permanently reside here?

If not, please state what form, if any, is necessary to qualify said citizen in said right, and much oblige an opponent to "immediate efforts" for a prostration of the nation before the autocrat of the South.

Respectfully, UNCOMPROMISING UNION.

[Temporary residence in another State does not impair your right to vote in the State where your permanent residence may be.—ED. TIMES.]

A VERMONTER WANTS TO VOTE HERE.

NEW-YORK, Sunday, Oct. 30, 1864.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

Being absent from my native State, I would ask if I can vote for President here? Very respectfully,

VERMONTER.

[You certainly cannot vote for President here unless you have permanently resided here one year. Better go home, and not lose your vote in any event.—ED. TIMES.]

VOTING RIGHTS IN NEW-JERSEY.

To the Editor of the New-York Times.

You will confer a favor on a constant reader of your paper by answering the following question on which there appears to be a diversity of opinion:

I moved into New-Jersey 1st September past, and have made my permanent residence there. Can I vote for President and Vice-President at the coming election, having only resided two months in the State?

I know a number of other cases similar to my own, parties who wish to vote if it is legal for them to do so. Very truly, &c., JAMES PATTERSON.

Nos. 314 and 316 Broadway.

NEW-YORK, Nov. 2, 1864.

[New-Jersey being considered as one of the United States, you cannot vote for President there without having resided there permanently one year.—ED. TIMES.]

THE CASE OF A NAVAL OFFICER.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

I am in the naval service and now in the Marine Hospital, Brooklyn. My ship is lying off the Seventh Ward, New-York. My family reside in Brooklyn. I am unable to go to New-York to vote. Can I not be registered and vote in the Twentieth Ward, Brooklyn, where my family resides? Please answer this, as it concerns several of my shipmates and many acquaintances in the service.

NAVAL OFFICER.

[No matter where your ship is. You can only vote, when not at sea, in the district where your family resides, which is your legal residence.—ED. TIMES.]

A NEW-JERSEY INQUIRER.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

I removed from the State of New-York to New-Jersey last April. Do I, in consequence, lose my vote for President of the United States? Is the Presidential vote under State or United States law?

UNION.

[You lose your vote. The Presidential election is regulated by the laws of the States.—Ed. Times.]

Eighth Congressional District.

WITHDRAWAL OF HON. B. F. MANIERRE.

To the Union Electors of the Eighth Congressional District—Eighteenth, Twentieth, and Twenty-first Wards:

GENTLEMEN: It is proper before giving my determination in respect to the unfortunate differences in our district, respecting nominations for Congress, that I should state in general terms the efforts which have been made to arrange them in a manner honorable to both Union nominees.

More than two weeks since a proposition was made by me to the State Central Committee, to the effect that the question as to which candidate could poll the most votes, should be submitted to a committee of seven gentlemen residing out of the district, three to be selected by each candidate, the seventh by the sixth. So chosen, the decision of a majority of that committee on that question to withdraw one candidate from the field, the next day that proposition was published in the Tribune, and brought to the notice of the other nominee, no action, however, was taken by him.

Subsequently, October 26, the same proposition was made by me to the opposing Union candidate personally. On the same day a committee representing that candidate addressed a note to me declining my proposition and offering a reference of the matter to a committee named by themselves, consisting of the five highest Government officials in this district. This was declined by a committee acting in my behalf, the proposition originally made by me was then, Oct. 27, renewed by that committee and two others made. First, the question of the number of votes likely to be polled by either candidates to be submitted to a committee of three residing out of the district, not Government officials, one to be chosen by each candidate, and the third by the two so designated. Second, the whole matter to be submitted to a committee of thirty, viz.: the fifteen delegates in the convention which nominated Mr. DODGE, and fifteen to be selected from the convention which nominated the undersigned.

These propositions were on the 29th all declined by the committee representing Mr. DODGE. Nov. 4, by invitation of the State Central Committee, I met Mr. DODGE before that body, where the whole matter was freely discussed. Various suggestions were made by that committee, but nothing agreed upon. A proposition was finally made by Mr. DODGE that the matter be referred to a committee of his own selection, viz.: the two United States Senators from this State. This was not accepted by the undersigned, and here terminated all negotiations.

These efforts, made in good faith for an amicable and satisfactory adjustment of this controversy, having proved unavailing, all that remains for me is to take the course which considerations of public duty alone impose upon me.

I cannot in justice to myself or to my friends consent to bear the imputation of the loss of a Union Representative in Congress from the Eighth District.

Having exhausted every honorable means for a settlement, and after careful reflection, I now withdraw from the contest.

To my friends who have faithfully supported me in the canvass, and have so zealously extended to me every assurance of confidence and good will, I return my most hearty thanks, and I recommend them to give W. E. DODGE, the Union candidate for Congress, the same earnest and hearty support which they would have accorded to me.

Your obedient servant,
BENJ. F. MANIERRE.

NEW-YORK, Nov. 2, 1864.

Card from Counsel of Mr. John B. Manning.

The undersigned, counsel of Mr. JOHN B. MANNING, in view of the delay which has occurred in completing his examination, and the further postponement of the matter until Thursday, the 10th of November, which was occasioned by the imperative demands of the judicial business upon the time of Justice DOWLING, feel that it is due to him and to his friends to give to the public a brief statement of their own conviction of his entire innocence of the charge brought against him. The testimony in his behalf, in part already presented, will establish conclusively that he was in this city on the day upon which the robbery of the 7 3-10 Treasury notes is charged to have been committed, and that, on the evening upon which it is alleged that about 8 to 9 o'clock he passed two of the stolen notes in the neighborhood of Washington market, he was not out of his own dwelling in Allen-street a single minute after entering it at 5 o'clock. Adding to this the very highest testimony as to the character for integrity and honest industry of Mr. MANNING, and the fact that a member of one of the largest clothing houses in the City of New-York, has testified that on the same evening, in this city, one of the stolen notes was passed on him by a man who, he says, resembles Mr. MANNING, and yet positively swears, MANNING being present, that he is not the man, we consider that the whole question resolves itself into one of unfortunate mistake as to identity.

Perry's MOTH AND FRECKLE LOTION.
Chloasma, or Moth Patches, Leutigs or Freckles, blemishes on the face called moth, are very annoying, particularly to ladies of light complexion, as the discolored spots on the face show more strongly on blondes than brunettes; but they contribute greatly in marring the beauty on either; and anything that will effectually remove them without injuring the skin in texture or color, would be considered a great achievement in medical science. Dr. B. C. PERRY, who has made diseases of the skin a specialty, has discovered an infallible remedy for the removal of moth, freckles and other discolorations from the face without injuring the skin in texture or color. Prepared only by Dr. B. C. PERRY, Dermatologist, No. 49 Bond-st., New-York. For sale by all druggists. Call for Perry's Moth and Freckle Lotion.

Hale's Honey of Horehound and Tar,
COUGHS, COLDS, INFLUENZA, HOARSENESS, DIFFICULT BREATHING, AND ALL AFFECTIONS OF THE THROAT, BRONCHIAL TUBES AND LUNGS, LEADING TO CONSUMPTION.

This sovereign remedy is compounded from the favorite recipe of an illustrious Physician and Chemist, who for many years used it with the most complete success in his extensive private practice.

He had long been profoundly impressed with the wonderful virtue of the honey of the plant Horehound, in union with the CLEANSING and HEALING properties of tar extracted from the LIFE PRINCIPLE of the forest tree Abies Balsamea, or Balm of Gilead. For years he was baffled in his attempts to blend these great medicinal forces into such a union that the original power of each would be preserved, the disagreeable qualities of common tar removed, and the price of the compound be within the means of all. At last, after a long course of difficult chemical experiments, he found that by adding to these five other ingredients, each one valuable by itself, he not only obtained the desired results, but greatly increased the curative power of the compound. This having been thoroughly tested by practice, is now offered to the general public as a safe, pleasant and infallible remedy.

At a meeting of the Executive Committee of the New-York Union State Committee, held at the Astor House, in the City of New-York, on the 2d of November, 1864, the following preamble and resolution were unanimously adopted:

The Executive Committee of the New-York Union State Committee, with a desire to harmonize the existing differences in the Sixth Congressional District, invited the two nominees, Hon. HENRY J. RAYMOND and Col. RUSH C. HAWKINS, to meet the Committee, and after hearing their statements in reference to the action of the nominating conventions and the subsequent attempt of the candidates to reconcile the differences in the District, it was unanimously

Resolved, That it be recommended to the two candidates and the conventions nominating them, (they having already selected each one referee,) to empower the Executive Committee to select a third referee to act with the referees already chosen by the respective candidates, and that the decision of the majority to determine which of the two candidates should be the candidate of the Union party in the Sixth District.

The proposition was accepted by Mr. RAYMOND and the convention which nominated him, but a letter was received from the convention which nominated Col. HAWKINS declining the proposition and submitting a counter proposition, that the difference be decided and the candidate selected by casting lots:

Thereupon it was unanimously resolved, That the convention which nominated Col. HAWKINS having declined the proposition made by this committee, and having submitted propositions which this committee do not regard as either expedient or conducive to harmonious and vigorous action among the Union men of the District, this committee, under all the circumstances of the case, and after careful inquiry as to the relative strength of the two candidates RECOMMEND ALL UNION VOTERS IN THE DISTRICT TO CAST THEIR VOTES FOR HENRY J. RAYMOND AS THE REGULARLY NOMINATED UNION CANDIDATE.

The regular business of the committee having been transacted, the following resolution was offered, considered and unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That we are amply gratified to learn that Hon. HENRY J. RAYMOND has accepted the nomination tendered him by the Union Convention of the Sixth Congressional District of the State of New-York; that our experience of his ability justifies us in recommending him to the people of that district, as one eminently qualified to faithfully represent them in the National Councils; and that we most earnestly desire his election, not because the position would benefit him, but because the country would be benefited by securing his services.

PRIVATE DISEASES CURED IN THE shortest possible time, by DR. WARD & CO., No. 61 Franklin-st., near Broadway, without the use of Mercury, loss of time or change of diet. Dr. WARD, from the hospitals of London, Paris and Edinburgh, is the discoverer of the only certain and reliable remedies for diseases of a private character. In 28 years practice he has cured more cases of Secret Diseases and Wrong Treatment than all others combined. If you have been unfortunate, call at once. By his special experience in this much neglected branch of medical science, he is enabled to guarantee a cure in the most complicated cases. Recent cases of Gonorrhœa or Syphilis cured in a few days, without change of diet or hindrance from business. Secondary Syphilis—the last vestige eradicated without the use of Mercury. Involuntary emissions stopped in a short time. Sufferers from Impotency, or loss of sexual power, restored to full vigor in a few weeks, permanently and speedily cured by a new treatment. Persons at a distance failing to receive prompt treatment elsewhere, may get a permanent cure effected by writing a full diagnosis of their case, addressed to Dr. WARD, No. 61 Franklin-st. Call, send, or write.

DR. A. M. MAURICEAU is the author of "THE MARRIED WOMAN'S PRIVATE MEDICAL COMPANION," strictly intended for those whose health and circumstances forbid a too rapid increase of family; a perusal of which will convince any lady of his thorough knowledge of her complaints. The public, therefore, are cautioned against using any other than Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE, which is affirmed by medical testimonials to be the most efficacious medicine ever discovered for Consumption, Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, Spasms, Rheumatism, &c. ITALIAN OPERA—WINTER SEASON.

The director has the honor to inform the public and the subscribers that the Academy of Music will be closed during election week.

ON MONDAY, Nov. 14, 1864,
will commence
THE REGULAR WINTER SEASON
of Italian Opera, which will extend to the 25th of December, after which the company has, by contract, to appear in other cities.

Among the prominent novelties and revivals to be produced during the next season, are Donizetti's masterwork, never yet produced in America,
DON SEBASTIANO,
and Auber's new version of his sparkling opera,
FRA DIAVOLO.

The author of this charming French opera in preparing it for the Italian stage, has not only revised and embellished the score throughout, but has contributed no less than five new numbers to the existing brilliant collection. The work has, therefore, quite the value of a fresh opera, and as such, cannot fail to interest the public. All possible advantage will be taken of the opportunities afforded for the display of an effective mise en scene, both in and for each the strongest cast has been assigned.
DON SEBASTIANO and FRA DIAVOLO,

The series of opera, now closed, has given the public ample opportunities for estimating the ability of the new artists introduced, and discovering the general strength of the large company engaged. The director has the satisfaction to say that the leading artists, whom he introduced a few weeks ago, are now acknowledged on all sides to equal, if not to surpass, the most illustrious of their predecessors in the several roles in which they have, up to the present time, appeared. It may be worth while to state here that this is the greatest legitimate success ever obtained at an American Opera House, inasmuch as the paying public were left free to criticise, to approve or disapprove, without being prejudiced in advance by preliminary puffing and the publication of sensation biographies of the new artists.

Every precaution has been taken to prevent the seeming manufacture of applause by an interested claque, such as has been often employed in former times upon like occasions, either by managers or the artists themselves. It is with increased confidence, therefore, that the Director extends his sincere thanks for the patronage accorded to the Opera, and he anticipates that the kind reception obtained by the principal members of the company will stimulate them even to more brilliant exertions before their new friends in the operas to be produced hereafter.

SUBSCRIPTIONS FOR EIGHTEEN NIGHTS will be received to-day and the following four days at the Box Office of the Academy of Music.

The regular sale of secured seats for any single night will commence on THURSDAY, Nov. 10, at the regular ticket offices.

CHICKERING & SONS

MANUFACTURERS OF GRAND, SQUARE, AND UPRIGHT PIANO-FORTES, No. 652 BROADWAY.—The superiority of these instruments has of late been amply demonstrated by the voluntary testimony of the foremost artists of the day, who claim for them excellencies of tone and workmanship hitherto unobtained by any other makers.

Mr. GOTTSCHALK'S constant use of the NEW SCALE CHICKERING GRAND PIANO-FORTES has severely tested their musical qualities, and resulted in establishing the justice of the very flattering estimation in which they are held.

Messrs. CHICKERING & SONS are Sole Agents for the celebrated Alexandre Organs for the United States.

STEINWAY & SON

GOLD MEDAL GRAND AND SQUARE PIANOS are now considered the best in Europe as well as this country, having received the first Prize Medal at the World's Exhibition in London, 1862.

The principal reason why the Steinway Pianos are superior to all others, is, that the firm is composed of five practical pianoforte makers, (father and four sons,) who invent all their own improvements, and under whose personal supervision every part of the instrument is manufactured. Warerooms, Nos. 71 and 73 East 14th-st., between Union-square and Irving-place, New-York.

THE WEBER PIANO-FORTE

Such is the testimony of S. B. Mills, Robert Heller, Geo. F. Bristow, Wm. Mason, C. Jerome Hopkins, Charles Fradel, Max Maretzek, Carl Anschutz, John Zundle, Maurice Strakosch, Giovani Sconcia, and every good musician in the United States. ANOTHER RALLY OF THE VETERANS.

Lincoln and Johnson Veteran Club Mass Meeting.

Speeches of Rev. Dr. Bellows, Hon. Daniel Dougherty, and Others.

Letters from Major-Gens. J. J. Peck and Daniel Butterfield.

The last of the series of mass-meetings, held by the Union Veteran Club, took place at the Cooper Institute, last evening, Dr. F. Willis Fisher, President of the Club, presiding.

It had been announced that Gen. Banks would speak; but at a late hour a telegram was received from him, stating that he had intended to start for New-York on Wednesday night, but his health was so bad that he would be unable to leave Boston. Some disappointment was felt, but the audience were compensated by the brilliant addresses of Rev. Dr. Bellows, Hon. Daniel Dougherty and Col. Carpenter.

The attendance of ladies at this meeting was unusually large, and hundreds of citizens were unable even to get into the corridors of the vast hall. In addition to the speaking, Alfred L. Curtis, Esq., Secretary of the Club, read a letter from the gallant Maj.-Gen. John J. Peck, a life-long Democrat, who was with McClellan in all his campaigns, commanding the rear-guard in the retreat from Malvern Hill to Harrison's Bar, and contributing largely to the safety of the army. He spurns the Chicago platform now, as he spurned the rebels then, and adopts the motto of the Veteran Union Club:

"We vote as we fought, to sustain the Government and crush the rebellion."

Dr. Fisher made a few appropriate remarks, and introduced Rev. Dr. Bellows.

SPEECH OF REV. DR. BELLOWS.

Six weeks ago, he had stood before an audience in San Francisco, to plead the same cause which he was to uphold to-night. The hearts of the people of the Golden State were with those of the East in their love for the Union. He hoped that every man present who had a vote to deposit at the coming election, would put it in the ballot-box with all the earnestness and solemnity with which he said his daily prayers for his native land. [Applause.] To vote for Lincoln and Johnson was to say that they wanted no disintegrated patchwork of a country, but a Joseph's robe—a whole seamless robe, like the flag that covered the nation—not one stripe or star the less, but the same imperishable, indivisible robe that our fathers wove with the very fibre of their being and dyed in sacred red with their own precious blood. [Applause.] There was one issue which transcended all others before the American people at this time, and providential issue which had sprung upon us, and out of which was to come, the destruction of that wretched worm, eating into the very heart of the nation's life—the accursed institution of slavery. [Applause.] That, however, was but a side issue, and was settling itself. He reviewed the manner in which slavery had been treated by the North previous to the breaking out of the rebellion—the consideration and leniency with which it had been dealt. He said that the war was destroying slavery by a side issue. It was dying of the sword; but until the sword was drawn, its life was safe as far as the Government and the pledges of the people of the North were concerned. It was a Upas tree. They had invoked the whirlwind, and they should have the fruits of the storm. That storm was rattling among the branches of the malignant tree. Its horrid trunk began to sway, and the roots to shrink. It had fallen by the lightning of God, of war, and would never lift its accursed head more. [Applause.] The cause of this war was the miserable doctrine that proclaimed these United States to be not a country or a Government, but a Confederacy of wretched States, each one of which retained in itself the right to stab its mother to the heart, and kill the nation whenever it wished to make itself the heir of some portion of its property. If this idea were permitted to obtain the control of affairs, we were no more a nation, but an aggregation of petty States, such as were the rule so many years in Italy and in Germany, which for fourteen hundred years had been under the dominion of the sword, and on a chronic condition of civil war. The speaker went on to show that the territory of the United States was from the nature of its location an integral nation—designed by the Creator to be one and indivisible. He considered this war as sent by God to wake up in us the instincts of self-preservation, as the body recoiled from blows or the living membrane shrank back from that which attempted to poison and burn out its life. The American people were just beginning to quiver with the secret, inarticulate influences of their national being. He blessed the war as the waking up from a dream of intolerance and of self-seeking to the consciousness that they had a nation, a flag, a name and an organic unity that must not be disturbed. [Applause.] The idea that had been maintained, that the States were independent nationalities, had given rise to sectional jealousies which had hindered the national progress and prevented great achievements by the country. It had obstructed the building of the Pacific railroad, and thus kept the Govenment and the country from realizing untold benefits. It had put an obstruction in the wap of establishing a system of an ocean steam navigation which might have equaled that of England. The speaker pictured in faithful colors the evils which would result from this disintegration of our country into separate sovereignties. This, he said, was the issue at the polls next Tuesday. We were to pass judgment upon the unity and salvation, or the separation and destruction of this nation. He cared but very little for the candidates in the field, although they might as well compare a satyr to Hyperion as to compare the candidate of the secession party—and he did not mean Jeff. Davis either—with the candidate for the Union. [Laughter.] He had nothing to say personally against either of the candidates. He respected them both. He had "hung on" to Gen. McClellan out of respect to the military authorities who had placed him in power and out of esteem for his humanity in regard to the soldiers, but he was sorry that the same tendency had influenced some of the soldiers to try to lift that untried, inexperienced soldier, without the least political training, without the ability to write a sentence which was not a glittering generality, or to announce which side he was on. [Laughter.] We needed the pilotage of the wisest head to bring the national vessel out of the storm and breakers into a safe haven. [Applause.] He had not known the abilities of Gen. McClellan as such a pilot; but he had known Abraham Lincoln [great applause] from the beginning—known that in humanity he was at least the peer of McClellan, and even in strategy is equal. [Laughter and cheers.] That in that great head on that long body [cheers] of his was a brain which surveyed and comprehended the interests and the destinies of this great country. [Applause.] I won't call him a handsome man, said the speakers, but an honester man never lived; and I think his honesty, as happens with other amiable people, has done something to prevent the people from appreciating the length and breadth of his intellect, which I solemnly believe is an intellect of the first order—slow, patient, resolute, far-seeing, all-embracing, standing solidly on a pyramidal base that cannot be shaken, whose summit is reared near the skies, inviting light from Heaven [applause]; and there stands, and will stand for four years more, to perfect and consummate the great, slow, sublime scheme for the preservation and perpetuation of the nationality of the American people. [Great applause]. After giving an account of his interview with the President and the presentation through him of the gift of a gold box from California, and drawing an appropriate comparison between its value and its untarnished purity and the character of the man whom the loyal people of the country proposed to place in the Presidential seat for another term, the speaker remarked that one of the first acts of the rebels after the inauguration of their nefarious scheme was to extinguish the lights in the lighthouses along their shores, an act analogous to all their other deeds—inviting darkness and destruction to brood over the land. Our flag, he said, while it is ours, is the beacon of liberty, an invitation to the oppressed in every clime, the hope of the world. Keep its stars burning; trim your lamps on Tuesday next, see to it that every ballot is, as it were, a lamplighter to hold up those stars and keep them burning. [Applause.]

A. L. Curtis, Esq., Secretary of the club, then read the following letters:

LETTER FROM MAJOR-GEN. PECK.

New-York, Oct. 28, 1864.

Gentlemen: I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your invitation to act as one of the Vice-Presidents of the mass meeting of the "Veteran Union Club," at the Cooper Institute, on the 3d day of November.

From 1839 to the date of my resignation in 1853, I was in the military service, and, although a Democrat, refrained from voting, and had no connection with any political party, but supported the Government, under the several administrations, with equal fidelity.

From 1853 to 1861 I was an active Democrat—a delegate to the Cincinnati and Charleston Conventions, supporting the lamented Douglas at the latter. Regarding the Constitution as the sacred will of our forefathers, I believed it should be carried out with entire good faith, and in a spirit of kindness, liberality and fraternity.

In common with the people of the North, I supposed secession was killed out by Jackson, Webster and Clay, and that opinion was strengthened by the miserable abortion on the part of Davis, about 1850, when he attempted to resuscitate the devilish doctrine. But this grand deception was removed by the South itself, and the breaking up of the Democratic party in 1860 was the prelude to the rebellion of 1861.

Believing the South wholly unjustifiable in going outside of the Union, that a resort to arms was uncalled for, and that Mr. Lincoln was duly elected President in accordance with the forms of the Constitution, in my judgment it was the clear and bounden duty of the people to rally as one man about the Government, and give it a cordial support irrespective of parties, so long as the Union should be menaced by a formidable rebellion.

Acting upon these sentiments, when the Massachusetts troops were attacked in Baltimore I was instrumental, with others, in organizing a Union mass meeting in Syracuse. I addressed the meeting, and announced that I had tendered my services to the President for any position as a volunteer. From that time until this, with the exception of a few months, I have been at the front, actively engaged with the enemy. On my part, all partisan or political action has been suspended. Prompt obedience has been given to all orders, and I have abstained from comment or criticism, lest the public interests might suffer.

For this action I have been assailed by members of both parties, but my conscience approves, and I have faith that men of liberal and enlarged views will give me credit for patriotic motives.

Peace, peace, has been the cry for nearly three years, but there is no peace. These cries of demagogues have only served to kindle afresh the fires of the rebellion, embarrass the conduct of the war, and swell the national indebtedness. If the rebels desire peace, it can be obtained by throwing down their arms. They have only to replace madness by reason, repudiate the bogus Confederate rule, and come back by States to their allegiance in good faith, in order to be on a footing with the other States, and in the enjoyment of all the rights, privileges and countless blessings of our Constitution.

But they assert that peace can only be secured by their unconditional independence. Since they do not wish for this blessing, our duty is to conquer an honorable peace. Sherman, Meade, Sheridan, Farragut, Porter and Grant have this matter in hand, and will soon end the war.

I remain, with great respect,
JOHN J. PECK.

Gerard L. McKenzie, A. L. Curtis, J. H. Stevens and others of committee.

LETTER FROM MAJOR-GEN. BUTTERFIELD.

Department of the East,
General Court-Martial Rooms,
No. 37 Bleecker-st., New-York, Oct. 29, 1864.

Messrs. Gerard L. McKenzie, A. L. Curtis, Jas. H. Stevens, and Wm. H. Draper, Committee Veteran Union Club:

Gentlemen: I am in the receipt of your communication giving me notice that I have been elected as a Vice-President of your mass meeting to take place Nov. 3.

It contains a request that I should notify you if it is not agreeable for me to accept your invitation.

I have never had any connection with political organizations or meetings.

It has been a long settled conviction with me that officers of the army should abstain from politics, otherwise than by voting.

I must, therefore, respectfully decline the invitation; but I trust that you will not misconstrue my refusal.

The failure to vote, I think, an unpardonable neglect upon the part of any one entitled to the privilege.

I shall not fail to deposit my vote against the Chicago platform.

I am convinced that there can be no peace without disunion until the rebellion is suppressed. I believe disunion to be national dishonor and perpetual anarchy.

I am, very respectfully, your obedient servant,
DAN'L BUTTERFIELD, Major-General.

The President then introduced, as a life-long Democrat of the Jefferson, Madison and Jackson school, Hon. Daniel Dougherty, of Philadelphia, who proceeded to address the meeting.

SPEECH OF HON. DANIEL DOUGHERTY.

He said that his proudest boast was that he was a private man and an American citizen. He was not here as the advocate of a party, to be blind in his praise of Mr. Lincoln, or to make a general denunciation of the present Democratic party. He was here to plead the cause of his country. [Applause.] He believed that the fate of this country hung like the sword of Damocles, by a single hair. In a week it was to be decided whether this nation should live or die. He had delighted to be in the Democratic ranks, when the Democracy were true to Democratic principles. It might be he was a renegade, as Mr. Belmont had said others was; but he would rather be a renegade to party than a traitor to his country. [Applause.] The loyalty of the Democratic party ceased with the death of Douglas, and he now charged it home, that the Democratic party, to-day, were engaged in sustaining the treason of the South. [Applause.] The men who were the masters of the Democracy at the North were traitors to their country. The speaker referred to the Cincinnati platform, and the declaration of the doctrine of popular sovereignty. Howell Cobb had said he should abide the decision of the majority of the people of Kansas. Stevens, Bryce and others, indorsed the same principle. Mr. Buchanan was elected upon that platform, and afterward abandoned it. In 1040, Jeff. Davis introduced in the Senate resolutions denying that principle, and in which he was sustained by the vote of the Democratic members. The secession leaders had divided the Democratic party, and though by that, and not by the Republican party, Mr. Lincoln was elected in 1860, yet the loyal men of the United States would reëlect him in 1864. [Applause.] The speaker then alluded to the early history of the rebellion, and said that while the rebellion was being formented the Breckenridge leaders were sustaining it in the North. Russell, of the London Times, stated that at a dinner at the residence of August Belmont, where he had met Horatio Seymour and Samuel J. Tilden, Chairman of the Committee on Resolutions at the Chicago Convention, "not a man there but resented the influence given by universal suffrage to the mob of the city, and complained of its intolerable tendency. They further said, in that occasion, according to Russell, that although they admitted the Southern leaders had meditated treason against the United States, yet they could not allow their old opponents, the Republican party, to have the disposal of the armed force of the Union against their brother Democrats of the South." Who was in Buchanan's Cabinet? Floyd, and Thompson, and Cobb, and white-livered Toucey—all traitors. Mr. Buchanan said that there was no power in the Constitution to coerce a State, and when that message came into the Congress, that a Democrate arose to repudiate that doctrine. Not a Democratic paper in New-York derived its truth, and Mr. Franklin Pierce even went so far as to write a letter to Jeff. Davis, in which he stated that if war must come, it would be in the North and not in the South; and Horatio Seymour had said that "successful coercion at the South was no more revolutionary than successful secession at the South." Jas. S. Thayer, a Democratic leader of to-day, had laid down the programme in his speech the doctrine that "the Union must be preserved, but if this cannot be done, then peaceable separation;" and these sentiments, inculcated by Horatio Seymour and James S. Thayer were uttered in 1861, in the midst of the treasonable acts and outrages in the South. In contrast with the course of the traitors in the South and their Confederates in the North, he would speak of the true men in the North. [Applause.] The day after the fall of Sumter, he went to the President and said that "while he would oppose him as a partisan, now that the rebellion had broken out, his duty was to give him his counsel and support until the termination of the rebellion." The speaker then read further extracts from the letters and speeches of Douglas; subsequently, also, the patriotic statements of Gen. Michael Corcoran to the same, and, cautioning his countrymen not to be deceived by the sounding name of Democracy. He was here to show it was a constitution right to suspend the writ of habeas corpus, and to suspend the traitors, too, [applause,] to confiscate their property, to emancipate their slaves. [Applause.] The Constitution was a word that was ever on the lips of a traitor, but, in the language of Cicero, the "Constitution was not made to protect traitors." In 1862, even as late at that, Fernando Wood and James Brooks and Horatio Seymour were on a war platform, and were elected, and what was next? Lord Lyons had said that the leaders of the Democratic party came to him in the view of securing the intervention of foreign Powers, and that peace would be desirable, even at cost of losing the Southern States. Vallandigham, another Democrat, had expressed his sympathy for the rebellion, and had been arrested and convicted, and Democratic meetings were called sympathizing with the traitor, and one speaker in New-York, Joseph McCunn, counselled destruction to the North, and two months after, the harvest of blood was reaped in our streets, the seeds of which were planted in those meetings in May. Then who were the leaders of the Chicago Convention? Powel, of Kentucky; Long, of Cincinnati; Norris, of Maryland; Vallandigham and Seymour. The speaker then alluded to the proposition for an armistice, during which, if it was carried out, the army must be returned to the North and remain here at expense of two millions a day, with a raising of the blockade to enable the South to send abroad cotton and tobacco and bring back Hessians to fight their battles, and more than that, to enable the South to plant cannon on Arlington Heights, to fire at any moment upon the capital. And who would pay the rebel debt due to whim? To the North? Not a dollar—but to England? Was any Irishman in favor of that? Let an armistice succeed, and we must also provide, not only for war, wounded soldiers and their children, but of the whole soldiers also. There were no terms we could make with them except unconditional submission. So long as they were not in favor of peace on that basis he was for war. [Applause.] He denied that the war had been a failure, and recounted the gallant deeds of our army in vindicating the national honor. There could be but one thing we could fall in, and that was on Tuesday next. Would we desert our country, our institutions and our flag? The soldiers prayed that we stand up to our flag, and he asked that the people

"Strike till the last armed foe expires;
Strike for their altars and their fires:
Strike for the green graves of their sires,
God and their native land."

[Prolonged cheers and applause.]

The Chairman next introduced Col. Campbell, of Kentucky, who proceeded to address the meeting.

SPEECH OF COL. CAMPBELL.

He said that he had also been a Democrat, all his life, but he had learned that one live man was worth a dozen dead ones. [Applause.] He was present at the funeral of the Democratic party, and was one of the chief mourners. [Laughter.] The Democratic party of to-day had no resemblance to the old Democracy. The Democracy was created to save the country, not to destroy it. [Applause.] All who stood by the flag were his brothers, and all who opposed it were his enemies. [Applause.] The Democratic party was sustained by the most unblushing falsehood and villification. In contrast with the sympathy it had in years past always expressed for the liberties of the people in all parts of the world, the Chicago Democracy had not the pluck to say whether they sympathized with Jeff. Davis or the United States' Government. They had put a war man at the head of their ticket, and a peace man at the tail. [Applause.] As to Gen. McClellan, he could say this in his favor, that he originated arbitrary arrests, and suggested the draft. As to his political history, he had none yet. The speaker replied to the assertion that the Abolitionists were the cause of the war. Slavery was well protected both by National and State law, but the war had stung it, and slavery now was writhing in its death throes. [Applause.] He then proceeded to analyze the issues of the campaign, and to show that the safety of the Republic dictated but one course for the patriot to pursue, and that was to reëlect the present Chief Magistrate of the country.

The concluding speech was made by Hon. Ethan Allen.

THE NATIONAL CONFLICT.

Eloquent Address by Bishop Simpson at the Academy of Music.

BISHOP SIMPSON ON OUR NATIONAL CONFLICT.

One of the densest audiences that ever crowded the Academy of Music, was assembled last night, at the lecture delivered by Rev. Matthew Simpson, D. D., of Pennsylvania, under the auspices of the Young Men's Christian Association. Long before the hour announced for the exercises to commence, there was a perfect jam, and at a quarter before 8 o'clock the doors were closed to prevent any more from entering. On the table, in the centre of the stage, was the identical flag unfurled on the Battery, on the evacuation of New-Rork by the British, on Nov. 25, 1783.

The subject of the lecture was "Our National Conflict." At 8 o'clock the exercises commenced. Rev. Dr. Dewitt presided, and the proceedings were opened with prayer by Rev. Dr. Anderson, of this city. Rev. Dr. Durbin then addressed a few remarks to the audience, calling upon them to contribute in aid of the association.

After a collection had been taken up, Bishop Simpson was introduced, and after the applause which greeted him had subsided, he proceeded with his address. He remarked that in any ordinary time, before such an audience and under the auspices of such an association, they would have a right to expect an address on some literary topic; but this was no ordinary time—it was a period of conflict of ideas as well as of swords—and everywhere, amid all classes of society, arises the question, either uttered or thought, what shall the end of all this be?

God had given us history as a slight guide by which to obtain some slight insight into futurity. He would ask of them to go with him a few moments while he endeavoured to imprint upon their minds some indications of what he deemed God's indications of the future. He desired to go far above the reach of political spirit, and ride together in the good Old Ship, the Constitution, and by-and-by she would be moored in the haven of safety and peace. There were four probable issues before them:

1. The passing into the hands of a foreign nation, and the destruction of our people as a nation.

2d, a division of the country into two separate confederacies; 3d, a reunion with the re-institution of Southern ideas and institutions; and 4thly, that this nation shall come out purer and stronger and more useful than ever. Taking up these great probable issues in their general order, and viewing them by the light of God's history, he could find no record of a great nation flourishing and dying in a century. The speaker reviewed the history of ancient and modern nations, their rise and fall, and showed that their original termination occupied multiplicity of centuries, and was it reasonable to suppose that the great Creator would deal harsher with us than with any other nation that he had created? Why this great western world reserved for so long a time from the eyes of older nations? It was reserved for an age of literature and science, for an age when men could worship God according to the dictates of his own conscience. It was reserved for an age when this great country could become the theatre of great men. Then look at the discovery of the land, its origin in a religious idea fomented by Columbus in the heart of a pious Queen. The men who, however, founded this country, were men who came here from civilized England to form a nation which should be preëminently free. He traced the early settlements of the country, their use and progress untrammeled by old institutions and prejudices, and then coming together as a nation years after, with free thoughts and free liberties, and with a basis of free toleration, no joining together of Church and State, but all being led together by the hand of God. In all the incidents of their career they could perceive that God had prepared us for a great mission. Now the question was, had they fulfilled their mission? Had they finished their work? If they had not, then their end was not yet come. He claimed that they had excelled all other nations in their works thus far. There was the severance of Church and State, their educational system, the elevation of the masses, the extinction of titles, no monopoly of wealth or talent, but all could aspire to the highest dignities in the nation. The cabin-boy might become the leader of their armies, and the ostler-boy sit in the Senate-Chamber. Who had not heard of Harry Clay, the mill-boy of the Slashes, [plaudits,] and of Gen. Jackson, the poor boy of poor Irish parents? And he had heard, and possibly they had seen in history, how a rail-splitter had become President

At this the audience became quite enthusiastic, rising in their seats en masse and applauding loudly and for some moments.

The speaker resumed. We were the great emigrant depot of the world. Did the people of other nations go elsewhere? No, they came here, till we had Irishmen enough to make us almost all Irish; Germans enough to hear the language of the fatherland in every street. They were coming from Italy and Hungary, and on the Pacific Coast they were coming from China and Japan. What nation could take their place? None. No, none. And, he said with reverence, God could not do without America. Should their country be divided, was the next question. It was a matter of history that virtue united while vice divided nations. If it was the scope of God that the nations of Europe should go and extend themselves, taking in all that was useless in themselves, to ennoble humanity, why should we desire to curtail this great humanitarian nation? How should this land be divided? Where would you strike the dividing line? This country could not be divided. Let the South go, and soon would follow the Northwest and the Pacific possessions. He did not want a hollow peace, one that would not last but for a year, then to be renewed, swallowing in its grasp not only this but the next generation. So much as he has depreciated war, let us have it for the next twenty years, and secure a lasting peace sooner than a patched up cessation of hostilities, which would only entail greater miseries. [Loud applause and cheers.] Why, even Jeff. Davis did not believe in the existence of a separate nationality. The South expected to change our institutions and control our land, and aid was expected in this great city; but it was loyal to the core, and beat responsive to the great heart of the nation, and the South were disappointed. No, they never would have Southern institutions with Southern ideas prevailing in their midst. If none of the three first issues could take place, then must the fourth occur, they were passing through a purifying fire, and would come out a brighter, purer and stronger nation. See the great happenings, as they were called, that had happened in this last twenty years. The coast survey, the mania for shipbuilding and railroad building, the telegraph, the agricultural machines, the sewing-machines, their extensive crops, with which to England they had fulfilled the Scriptural maxim, "If thine enemy hunger, feed him;" When the history of the war was written, there would not only be heroes, but heroines. Our nation was to be bankrupt, but God had provided a purse which European capitalists could not control. The war of Mexico came on, and with it the gold mines of California. From 1848 to 1861, California had given them six hundred millions of gold; quite a nice little capital to commence on. And when more money was wanted, God took off the curtain from the hills and mountains of Nevada, and untold treasures of gold and silver were revealed to the light of day. And he believed that, if necessary to the welfare of the country, God would uncover solid rocks of gold and silver. And they calculate the amount of wealth God had given them there was enough in these mines to pay off all their debts, give every soldier a silver musket, plate their iron-clads with beds of silver and gold, and have enough left to give a fortune to every man, woman and child. Talk about bankruptcy, why, in respect to currency, they could stand upright and bid defiance to every nation in that respect as in all others.

The speaker then reviewed the history of foreign intervention, and the providential happenings which had caused its failure on all occasions.

There was all these possible indications that God intended this war to be successful; but when this great result would be consummated he could not tell, but he believed the day was not far distant. The rebel currency was below zero in Summer time. Brave as the Southern men were, they failed in numbers. Their last army raised, and that broken, what could they do? Their soldiers were deserting by thousands; the treatment they gave to our prisoners, because they had nothing to give them. They were in a state of famine and desperation. On our side, all was bright and prosperous, and with these indications, who could say that the day was not near?

The speaker concluded his highly effective address amid much applause.

Staten Island.

The Union men of Richmond County are untiring in their efforts on behalf of the electoral and State tickets, and in their endeavors to carry the county for their Congressional candidate, George William Curtis. To-day (Friday) at 3 P. M., and in the evening, they hold a grand mass meeting in a tent, near Jones' Hotel at Tompkinsville—to which ladies are especially invited—at which Mr. Curtis, Hon. James T. McCLELLAN MEETING AT UNION SQUARE.

A Mass Meeting Called, but the Masses Refuse to Respond.

AN UTTER FAILURE.

A remarkably small specimen of a McClellan mass meeting was held last evening at Union-square. Four stands were erected and decorated with flags and colored lanterns; bands of music were stationed on each stand, and every attempt made to attract a crowd, but it was useless; the affair was a perfect fizzle. Probably, at no one time during the evening there were more than two thousand persons present, and very many of these were passers-by, who stopped for a moment to hear the music, or to find out what the affair was about. There was no enthusiasm, no excitement, and the speakers were listened to by the boys (for they composed the greater part of the audience) with a sort of listless patience that was really amusing.

At 8 o'clock, after the band had played for half an hour or more, and the crowd at the main stand had assembled one by one, until they amounted to perhaps five hundred persons, the meeting was called to order by Mr. John H. Williams, who nominated as Chairman Mr. Harris Bogart. He was unanimously elected. A set of resolutions were then adopted, after which the Chairman introduced who said he was glad to see so many Democrats together, it was a proper place for them to meet at Union-square. The Republicans had engaged Cooper Institute, and the real Democrats who were not afraid of rain or storm were obliged to meet in the streets. The country was now almost bankrupt, the national debt had reached some 2,000 millions of dollars, which must be borne by the rich and the poor. The question to be settled on the 8th of November was whether we would longer submit to this increasing debt and taxation; to a loss of 1,000 men every twenty-four hours, and keep Abe Lincoln and his imbecile Administration in power. We were now living under the mere will of the President; if he injured any one no redress could be had, and he called upon every man who would save his country to vote for McClellan, the man who was persecuted by the Government because he was in favor of saving the country. On the 8th of November the people were to decide whether we were to have a republican form of government or a mere despotism. The policy of the Administration was to convert this country into an immense empire, and he wished to know whether his audience were willing to see eight millions of the white race exterminated for the benefit of the negroes. He then elaborately criticised the career of Gen. Dix, and tried hard to prove him to be a very unsafe and bad counselor in all political matters. In this undertaking he did not seem to succeed, however, even to the satisfaction of the boys. The remainder of his speech was devoted to wholesale denunciation of Gen. Sickles, Ex-Judge Pierrepont and many other prominent and well-known gentlemen of this city, winding up with a long list of charges against Tammany Hall, which he believed to be in league with the Republicans, and the most corrupt organization ever known on the face of the earth. He was followed by Mr. Price and others.

At stand No. 2 the demonstration was exceedingly juvenile. Several boys, possibly fifty in number, constituted the entire gathering around the platform. The meeting was called to order by Mr. Archibald Phillips, who, after a few remarks, introduced M. H. Sawyer, Esq., who commented at considerable length on the early history of our country, and, coming down to our Revolutionary struggle, drew several parallels, not very obvious, between that period and the present time. Mr. Sawyer was followed by J. P. Brady, Esq., who stated that "the gigantic questions of the times were somewhat stupendous"—a fact which was not disputed by the audience. Mr. Brady insisted that if Washington's career had been brilliant, McClellan's was equally so. The orator, at the conclusion of his remarks, was as loudly applauded as the limited number of his hearers would permit. At Stand No. 3, the gathering was not more considerable than at stand No. 2. The audience was called to order by Mr. Philip H. Mathews, who introduced as the first speaker Hon. Eli P. Norton. Mr. Norton discoursed eloquently on the subject of the peaceful disposition the Democrats of this city had always manifested at the polls, and trusted that the same docile spirit would be exercised on the 8th of November. The unterrified were next entertained by Hon. Levi S. Chatfield, who was particularly severe on Gen. Dix, insisting that that distinguished officer had served his country in numerous capacities, and always under Democratic rule; hence the inference drawn from the speaker's remarks, was, that because Gen. Dix supported the Government he was a renegade from the Democratic party.

The meeting adjourned at an early hour with desperate, but unsuccessful attempts at cheers.

PETROLEUM

ASTOR BURNING SPRING
PETROLEUM LAND ASSOCIATION,
TO BE INCORPORATED UNDER THE LAWS OF THE STATE OF NEW-YORK.

CAPITAL..........$2,000,000
100,000 Shares, at $20 Each.

Subscription price for the remaining 20,000 shares for full-paid stock, free from all assessments, $8 per share—being less than one-half of its par value; 10,000 shares are reserved to pay expenses of the Association. The property secured for the company consists of about 7,000 acres, all in fee. There is between sixty and seventy miles of this property on rivers, runs and creeks, of the best boring territory. It is located mostly on the celebrated Rathbone Burning Spring Tract, on the Little Kanawha River, Wirt and Calhoun Counties, Virginia, about twenty-four miles from Parkersburgh, and seven miles from the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. A charter has been granted for a branch road, and laid out directly through the lands of this Association, which it is expected will be completed in a very short time, which will give a direct communication to all the Eastern cities, as well as the Ohio River, by the railroad.

Numerous applications have already been made for leasing lots on this tract, and it is confidently believed by reliable persons that have returned, after making a thorough examination of the property, who are ready to give all information that may be wanted in regard to the same, that it can be made to yield an income to the association in ninety days after its organization of from five to ten per cent. per month on the investments from the cash bonusses, for leases of lots and royalty alone, without the expenditure of one dollar by the company. Lead ore, coal and timber of the finest quality, in immense quantities, are also on these lands. The attention of capitalists to this enterprise is solicited, as a first-class investment at price offered. The organization of the company is deferred until the stock subscription is completed. No money to be paid until the Shareholders' Committee are satisfied with the property, when a meeting of subscribers will be called for the purpose of electing their own officers. Books of subscription, giving full particulars, are now open at the office of

Is prepared by the originator of the justly celebrated Coe's Cough Balsam. Mr. Coe has never prepared a medicinal article for public and general use but what has tood the strongest tests, and has always borne the palm of victory over every disease it has been certified to cure.

Will you who are suffering from Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Nausea, Heartburn, Sick-Headache, Cramp and Pains in the Stomach and Bowels, Acidity of the Stomach, Cholera Morbus, Dysentery and General Debility and weakness of the whole system, try but a single bottle, we will never urge you again, if we fail in this case. Our own knowledge of its merits, the united testimony of all who have ever tried it, the encomiums of hundreds of our own neighbors, your duty to yourself, and the beneficial result, as certain as the sunshine, all earnestly, persistently, urge you to just try one bottle. If what we say is not correct, if our statements concerning its wonderful virtues are not found to be true, if you do not say that the operation of the medicine is instantaneous and perfectly wonderful, we will renounce our profession as caterers to the public health, and retire from the field, admitting that we are incompetent to compound a medicinal preparation which would be entitled to your confidence.

TO THE LADIES OF AMERICA,
LYON'S PERIODICAL DROPS,
LYON'S PERIODICAL DROPS,
THE GREAT FEMALE REMEDY!
THE GREAT FEMALE REMEDY!

LYON'S PERIODICAL DROPS cure all complaints incident to the sex, and remove all obstructions of nature, from whatever cause, producing health, vigor and strength.

LYON'S PERIODICAL DROPS rae better than all pills, powders and nostrums; being a fluid preparation their action is direct and positive, and it needs nothing but good common sense to see and understand the reason why they cure all those ills to which the female system is subjected, with dispatch and a degree of certainty which nothing but a scientifically compounded fluid preparation could reach. They are, in the most obstinate cases,

RELIABLE, AND SURE TO DO GOOD!
RELIABLE, AND SURE TO DO GOOD!
AND CANNOT DO HARM,
AND CANNOT DO HARM,
To the most delicate constitutions.

LYON'S PERIODICAL DROPS will certainly produce the regular return of nature, if taken a day or two before the expected period, and it is a maxim in the profession, that prevention is better than cure.

LYON'S PERIODICAL DROPS have been used by over twenty-five thousand ladies, within the past six months, and the testimony of all is, "It surely cures."

CAUTION!!! CAUTION!!!

Bear in mind that I guarantee my DROPS TO CURE Suppression of the Menses, from whatever cause, though care should be taken to ascertain if pregnancy be the cause, as these DROPS would be sure to produce miscarriage, if taken whilst in that situation, and all are cautioned against using them, as I wish it distinctly understood that I do not hold myself responsible when used under such circumstances.

TO MARRIED LADIES

They are peculiarly adapted, as they bring the monthly period with such perfect regularity.

I could furnish any quantity of testimonials of its efficacy from my own patients, but the practice of parading bought and fictitious ones before the public is so prevalent, that I do not deem it advisable.

Do not suffer from these irregularities when an investment of one dollar in Lyon's Periodical Drops will regulate and restore nature to its healthy course; and by those who have other preparations, which they desire to palm off upon the strength of the popularity of my Drops. But when the druggist you apply to has not got them, either make him buy them for you, or else inclose one dollar to the nearest general wholesale agent, who will return you a bottle by return express.

DO NOT BE IMPOSED UPON!
DO NOT BE IMPOSED UPON!

See that the name of Jno. L. Lyon is written upon the directions which are wrapped around each bottle. None others are genuine. Therefore, beware of counterfeits. They are for sale by every druggist in city and country, at one dollar ($1) per bottle. If you wish relief, take no other.
